Extra instruction debated

Area educational leaders wonder about logistics, benefits and cost.

A suggestion by President Barack Obama that American students need to spend longer hours in the classroom is sparking discussion across the nation.

In the Mid-Mon Valley, several school district officials agree longer classes and shorter summer vacations would require much study.

Obama and Secretary of Education Arne Duncan say American students don't spend enough time in class and that schools should stay open late and let children in on weekends. Neither detailed how those changes should occur. Increasing education time could help American students compete in a global society, Obama said.

A 2003 International Bureau of Education survey showed the average American student spent 1,146 hours a year in class. By comparison, students in the Philippines go to school for 1,400. (It should be noted that students in Hong Kong go for fewer hours, 1,013 per year.)

In Pennsylvania, schools must offer at least 180 instruction days each year, said Leah Harris, spokeswoman for the state Department of Education.

The state requires students in kindergarten through sixth grade to receive at least five hours of

Senate receives House budget

The House has sent Gov. Ed Rendall a tax bill designed to cover budget expenditures.

HARRISBURG — In a public embarrassment they wanted to avoid, lawmakers today hit the century mark in days without approving a state budget, even as they moved closer to a final spending plan.

"We've broken the logjam," House Majority Leader Todd Eechus, D-Luzerne County, said Wednesday.

The House last night approved a $27.8 billion budget in a 107-93 vote and sent it to the Senate. The House also sent a tax bill to Gov. Ed Rendell to fund the budget.

The tax measure, approved 102-96, includes a 25-cent per pack tax increase on cigarettes, extends the cigarette tax to "little cigars" but not cigarillos, and halts the phaseout of the capital stock and franchise tax, a tax on business assets. It was approved largely along party lines.

Eliminated were controversial tax proposals to levy the sales tax on music, theater, dance, museum and zoo admissions, impose a 20 percent levy on small games of chance, place an excise tax on smokeless tobacco and cigars, and tax natural gas extractions.

If the House budget proposal "is consistent with how Speaker (Keith) McCall described it to me (Wednesday) afternoon, it should receive a favorable reception in the Senate," said Senate Majority Leader Dominic Pileggi, R-Delaware County. It might take all day today to review it, he said.

The late budget for 2009-10 "is embarrassing to all of us," Rep. Dwight Evans, D-Philadelphia, told reporters earlier this week.

"You'll all be writing stories that we're on the 100th day," he added. Pennsylvania faced a $3.2 billion deficit on June 30 — when a budget was due — as a result of plunging state tax revenues.

To Al Hessler, 83, of South Park, the delay stems from "politicians playing games at the expense of taxpayers."

"I'm just fed up with the whole bunch of them in Harrisburg, from the governor on down," Hessler said.

There is a partial, $11 billion budget in place to pay state workers, contractors and emergency services.

But schools, counties, social services and day care centers aren't being funded because Rendell vetoed $12 billion in early August so he would have what he called "leverage" over lawmakers to push through a major tax increase, which failed.

It's the longest budget impasse

Rostraver commissioners pick Martin, irk residents

Jack McShane said there is a difference between what's legal and what's appropriate.

ROSTRAVER TOWNSHIP — Two residents Wednesday took issue with how the board of commissioners filled a vacancy left by the death of Ralph Iacoboni.

Iacoboni, 57, died from cancer Sept. 28 during his second year as a commissioner.

The board, by law, had 30 days from the time of death to appoint a replacement.

At a meeting Wednesday, commissioners Nick Lorenzo, Brian Sokol, Tom Patterson and Pat Egros voted unanimously to appoint former commissioner and board chairman George A. Martin to fill Iacoboni's term, which expires Dec. 31, 2011.

When Lorenzo asked the board to name potential replacements, only Martin was nominated.

During public comment, resident Jack McShane said the commissioners should have advertised the vacancy.

"When you appoint somebody like that, it kind of shuts some of the sunlight out because it doesn't give anyone an opportunity, and it casts the shadow over the board that perhaps we are getting board members who are politically compatible with your thinking," McShane said. "It's maybe not the way you see it, but that sheds a little light on perhaps what the constituency whom you serve may think."

"What took place here tonight was legal," Lorenzo said.

"I didn't say it wasn't," McShane replied. "But there's a difference between appropriate and legal."

Lorenzo said Martin contacted the four standing board members by letter and by phone earlier this week, expressing his interest in returning to the board.

Lorenzo said all of the commissioners agreed to appoint Martin.

The board then went into an executive session to discuss personnel issues.

Before the board entered the session, resident Don Bottman said he wanted to make a Lorenzo told Bottman to wait until the board reconvened.

The board members returned and adjourned the meeting while residents were having conversations.

Americans shopping on the cheap

Many consumers are exploring the bargain end of bargain retailers.

NEW YORK — People aren't just shopping more at Family Dollar. They're buying the lowest-priced stuff on its racks.

Pizza Hut was left hungry for sales as consumers sought better fast-food bargains.

Shoppers' financial strain is clear in the latest batch of corporate financial reports this week. The operative word for the American consumer isn't "value." It's "cheap."

Meanwhile, data on consumer credit, released Wednesday by the Federal Reserve, shows that consumers reduced their borrowing for the seventh straight month in August, as households cut spending and banks reduced credit card limits.

"I've never seen a softer U.S. consumer than what we're seeing today, in my career," said David C. Novak, Chairman and CEO of Yum Brands Inc., which owns Pizza Hut as well as KFC and Taco Bell.

Israel: Peace still far away

U.S. envoy George Mitchell will continue to push for a deal.

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Israel's powerful foreign minister declared today that there is no chance of reaching a final accord with the Palestinians any time soon, casting a pall over the U.S. Mideast envoy's latest effort to get peace talks moving again.

Peacemaking policy in Israel is decided by the prime minister's office, and not the foreign ministry. But Foreign Minister Avigdor Lieberman carries significant weight in Israeli decision-making, and his is a sentiment common among confidants of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

President Barack Obama brought Netanyahu and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas together in New York last month in an effort to jumpstart talks that broke down months ago. So far, no breakthroughs have been announced.

Since the New York

summit, U.S. envoy George Mitchell met with representatives of Netanyahu and Abbas in the United States, and returned to the region this week.

He was to meet with Lieberman and Defense Minister Ehud Barak on Thursday and has sitdowns planned with Netanyahu and Abbas for Friday.

Israeli media reported that a Mitchell aide told local journalists Wednesday that the envoy's visit was not likely to conclude with an announcement on talks resuming.

"We're going to continue with our efforts to achieve an early relaunch of negotiations between Israelis and Palestinians, because we believe that's an essential step toward achieving the comprehensive (Mideast) peace to which I earlier referred," Mitchell told reporters as he entered a meeting with Israeli President Shimon Peres on today.

Lieberman told Israel Radio on today that anyone who thinks the two sides can soon reach a deal ending their decades-old conflict "doesn't understand the situation and is spreading delusions."

What the two sides should do, he said, was to come up with a long-term interim arrangement that would ensure prosperity, security and stability, and leave the tough issues "to a much later stage."

This approach runs counter to U.S. efforts to reach an Israeli-Palestinian peace deal quickly. Obama has declared that establishing a Palestinian state alongside Israel is a vital U.S. interest.

Also, Israel would not find a Palestinian partner for putting off a resolution to the conflict indefinitely.

Lieberman's view does not bode well for U.S. attempts to restart negotiations.

Budget (FROM PAGE ONE)

since at least 1970, when the Legislature didn't approve one. It was March 1971 before a budget was approved. But there had been a 270-day stopgap budget in effect.

In 2003, most of the budget was in place in March, but it wasn't finalized until December because Rendell had vetoed public education funding to win a 10 percent increase in the state income tax.

The 100 days "is kind of a benchmark that flies in the face of responsible government," said Jerry Shuster, a professor of political communications at the University of Pittsburgh. "It's reinforcement of a do-nothing Legislature"

The perception by citizens is that "we can't be late in paying our taxes yet the Legislature can be 100 days late in passing a budget and meeting a constitutional requirement," said Shuster.

"The public is so fed up that I don't think 100 days means anything," said Jack Treadway, former chairman of the political science department at Kutztown State University and author of a book on state elections.

"To me, this isn't a pay raise or a sex scandal. It's just incompetence."

"Rendell hasn't passed a budget on time since he's become governor, so it's really par for the course," said Rob Lyman, 39, of Ambridge.

"They need to put a plan in place so this never, ever happens again," said Joe Cook, director of the Mental Health Association of Beaver County, who is struggling to provide service with state funding drying up through Beaver County government.

making his point to Lorenzo.

"I would contend that 99 percent of the residents that vote in this township didn't know there was a vacancy," Bottman said.

"Legally, you don't have to advertise," Lorenzo said.

"But, it would have been the courteous thing to do," Bottman replied.

"I had no problem with appointing Mr. Martin, so why would I advertise and interview 20 people that I'm not even going to appoint?" Lorenzo said.

"The question is why wouldn't you?" Bottman responded. "You mean you made your mind up in the back room on one guy?"

"It happens," Lorenzo said. "We had a full agreement on George Martin. Why would I lie to the people that apply if our intention was to appoint Mr. Martin?"

"The purpose of advertising is to solicit qualified applicants to put their resumes forward," Bottman said. "You've done a disservice to the township."

"Well, that's your opinion," Lorenzo replied.

Asked if Martin had not expressed interest in filling the position, Lorenzo said, "Then we would have advertised."

"I said to our solicitor the majority of the board wants to appoint without advertising, and he said that is legal," Lorenzo said.

"So it was the board's decision to not advertise?" Bottman asked.

"That's right," Lorenzo said.

After serving six years on the board, Martin resigned in Jan. 2005, stating publicly that, "I'm just tired physically and mentally of trying to do the best job for the township as a whole."

Attempts to reach Martin for comment were unsuccessful.

It's bad news for investors looking for companies to show strong revenue growth to fuel profits after several quarters of beating earnings forecasts by slashing costs. The only glimmer of hope was a pickup in demand in other countries, providing some evidence that any economic recovery will be led by foreign shoppers.

Yum's 18 percent profit growth in the third quarter was largely fueled by business in China; the restaurant operator warned Wednesday that its fourth quarter will be the low point of its year in the U.S.

Yum's sales were dragged down largely by Pizza Hut. The chain suffered a 13 percent drop in sales at stores open at least a year, in a category where sales have been nearly flat.

Pizza Hut charges more for pizza and other items than rivals such as Domino's and Papa John's. Consumers even spent less at Taco Bell, which is more value-oriented. Sales fell 2 percent in the third quarter.

"It's the first time where I've actually seen research show that people are actually cooking more at home" than they say they intend to, Novak added.

Costco reported that food and necessities remained popular with consumers and that new members are signing up because they can now use food stamps at some stores.

"Certainly this economy was a wake-up call," Costco Wholesale Corp.'s Chief Financial Officer Richard Gallanti told investors Wednesday. "It is not just very low-end economic strata that are using these that typically don't have purchasing power. It's a lot of people that are using this as a source of their overall consumption."

Family Dollar, whose profit rose 13 percent in its most recent quarter, said store-brand products are increasingly popular, so it plans to expand those offerings as well as its food assortment generally. The CEO also said he's seen more "trade-down customers," or middle income shoppers hunting for discount items.

Meanwhile, aluminum producer Alcoa Inc., the first member of the Dow Jones industrial average to report third-quarter earnings, reported a surprise profit. The company's products are used in everything from autos to food wrap to beverage cans, but its CEO indicated the demand is coming from China, not the U.S.

American consumers, whose spending accounts for more than 70 percent of the economy - including housing and health care, according to a government measure - continue to grapple with a weak job market and tight credit.

Shoppers "are dipping their toes in the water," said Ken Perkins, president of retail research firm Retail Metrics. "The problem is American consumers are tapped out."

instruction each day, she said. That's 900 hours a year. Secondary students must receive at least 5.5 hours a day, or 990 hours a year.

Secondary students in the Charleroi Area School District receive six hours and 15 minutes of instruction per day, not including lunch and home room periods, Superintendent Dr. Brad Ferko said.

Ferko said longer school days would require changes.

A change would affect extra curricular activities because students practice after school. Ferko asked how such a move would affect high school students with after-school jobs.

He wondered about whether districts would have to provide extra meals and costs related to keeping teachers longer.

Ferko doubted whether kindergarten and first grade students would benefit from longer days.

He would rather see districts go to year round classes. Under such a schedule, students would receive breaks of a few weeks four times a year rather than an extended break during the summer.

Ferko said some districts have had some success with longer school days.

"We'd really have to change the way we teach," Ferko said. "If you have those students that last period and are trying to teach them math, how do you make sure you don't lose those students?" Ferko asked. "How do you make sure they are still learning?"

"It all comes back to how you're teaching that student and energizing that student."

Ringgold School District Superintendent Gary Hamilton said he favors adding more days rather than longer instruction days.

He said Ringgold has slowly increased the number of instructional days in recent years.

Ringgold Assistant Superintendent Dr. Karen Polk said middle school students have block scheduling - double periods consisting of 90 minutes for math and language arts, and alternating science or social studies.

Hamilton said reconfiguring minutes of instruction helps educators more efficiently use instructional periods.

"I don't know increasing the length of a day for a child is the answer," Hamilton said. "You want a well-rounded child. And I don't want a child walking home in the dark."

While some districts go year round, Hamilton said, "You better have air conditioning. I'm not in favor of going year round, unless you have the facilities that are conducive to that," Hamilton said.

Monessen School District Superintendent Dr. Cynthia Chelen said many students and teachers already stay after school for tutoring and extra-curricular activities.

She said the district offers summer school sessions to help students.

Chelen wondered about the financial aspect of extended instruction.

"Who is going to pay for it? Is it going to be another unfunded mandate the local communities get stuck paying?" Chelen asked.

Pine Cove Club burglary probed

Fallowfield Township police are investigating a burglary that took place either late Tuesday or early Wednesday morning at the Pine Cove Swim Club.

According to Officer-in-Charge Stephen Kenyon, unknown actors entered the office area of the business and removed several hundred dollars in money and coins.

The incident took place between 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Police said the facility's alarm system was activated and a video camera was recording during the burglary. Kenyon said police are still reviewing the tape.

Kenyon asked that anyone with information to contact Fallowfield Township police at (724) 483-4545. All information will remain confidential.

Bentleyville man hurt in accident

A Bentleyville man suffered minor injuries as a result of a one-vehicle accident that took place after 6 p.m. Tuesday on State Route 481, near the Kennedy Road intersection.

Fallowfield Township police said a vehicle operated by Marvin Taylor, 70, was traveling north on Route 481 when, for some reason, his vehicle exited the lane and struck a utility pole and a fence on the east side berm.

Taylor was transported to Mon Valley Hospital by the Bentworth Ambulance Service for treatment.

Assisting police at the scene were Fallowfield Township firefighters, Allegheny Power personnel and Bujanowski's Towing Service.

SEC to pursue Mark Cuban case

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Wednesday it plans to appeal a federal judge's dismissal of the agency's insider-trading lawsuit against Mark Cuban, the Pittsburgh-born billionaire who owns the NBA's Dallas Mavericks.

The SEC filed a notice in U.S. District Court in Dallas that it plans to take its case to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Cuban, who was raised in Mount Lebanon, was accused in a civil lawsuit of selling his shares and avoiding a $750,000 loss after receiving confidential information about the Internet search engine company Mamma.com Inc. in 2004.

U.S. District Judge Sidney A. Fitzwater dismissed the case in July, ruling the agency didn't allege that Cuban had agreed not to trade on confidential information.

Gamblers work slots machines at the Meadows Racetrack and Casino, where three men allegedly conspired to collect more than $425,000 in fraudulent jackpots by exploiting a software glitch in a machine.

'System worked' at Meadows

Steps that led to the arrest of 3 men for collecting fraudulent jackpots are praised.

By JILL GREENWOOD and CHRIS TOGNERI
For The Valley Independent
jgreenwood@tribweb.com
ctogneri@tribweb.com

The Meadows Racetrack and Casino is out $429,000, but officials there would prefer to focus on a different number:

Three, the number of people arrested on charges they exploited a software glitch in a slot machine to create and collect more than 60 fraudulent jackpots over a two-month period.

"Let's not forget -- in this instance, ultimately the system worked," said David La Torre, a Meadows spokesman. "A problem was identified, local law enforcement and Meadows Casino staff worked together, and three people were arrested."

"This is not a case of the system breaking down. It's a case of the system working."

A day after state police arrested three men -- including a former Swissvale police officer -- in connection with the heist, La Torre declined to discuss security specifics but said the North Strabane casino is ready for the next scheme.

"We've corrected the issue," he said Wednesday. "We invest a lot of resources daily into the security and integrity of our gaming machines. We will continue to take several steps to improve on that."

Ralph Witherspoon of Witherspoon Security Consulting in Cleveland said slots -- which are run by computer chips -- can be manipulated "if someone knows what they're doing."

"Anything made by man can be manipulated by man," Witherspoon said. "The manufacturer never should have developed and sold something that could be manipulated on the face of it with different button and screen pushes. It boggles the mind."

After a five-week Washington County grand jury investigation, state police arrested Andre Nestor, 37, and Kerry Laverde, 49, both of Swissvale, and Patrick Loushil, 42, of Brookline. Charges against the men include theft, receiving stolen property, unlawful use of a computer and conspiracy.

Investigators say the men manipulated a draw poker machine in the high-limit section of the casino, causing the machine to display false jackpots.

No other gamblers' payouts were affected by the lost money, La Torre said. The men manipulated the machines so that a payout sum appeared on the slot screen, but not on the internal accounting records, he said.

A news release from the state Gaming Control Board said its staff helped with the investigation. A spokesman declined to provide any specifics.

Police described Nestor as the mastermind, and Laverde and Loushil as accomplices. Nestor used a "complex series of button presses and screen changes to cause the slot machine to have an error in its programming" and create false payouts, according to a presentment from the grand jury outlining the case.

When the men were arraigned Tuesday night, Nestor told District Judge Jay Weller that he has collected welfare since 1994. He also said he could pay his and Laverde's bonds of $200,000 each. The cash is in a safety deposit box, he told the judge.

Loushil's bond was set at $100,000. The men remained in the Washington County jail last night.

Investigators said Nestor was born and raised in Cambria County and has lived in the Pittsburgh area off and on since the 1980s. From 2001 to 2008, he had listed addresses in Las Vegas; Sacramento; West Hollywood; and in Orange County, investigators said.

At one point, he worked for a Red Lobster in Las Vegas.

Laverde left the Swissvale Police Department in 2001 -- resigning, he told co-workers, so he could work for a casino in Las Vegas, Swissvale police Chief Greg Geppert said.

Laverde served as an officer for six or seven years, Geppert said. Before that, he worked about eight years as a dispatcher, Geppert said.

He would not comment on Laverde's job performance. But Geppert said: "We have a lot of good guys here, and this is giving us all a black eye."

Another cornucopia of Valley memories

There's never a shortage of reminders of Yesteryear among readers of The Valley Independent.

Today's offering is a good example.

A woman in Donora, for instance, sent a copy of Page 17 of the August 5, 1971, edition of this newspaper. The single sheet includes references to these advertisers:

■ Creamy De-Lite on Route 88 in Roscoe proclaimed it was "Famous for Our Giant Submarines." The popular eatery also touted chicken in a basket for 59 cents and onion rings for 25 cents.

■ The Ladies Guild and Booster Club at Mon Valley Catholic High School was ready for its first bazaar, a major fund-raiser. The four-day event on the school grounds featured pony rides, games, amusements, refreshments, a teen dance, free parking and valuable prizes nightly.

■ Camino's Drive-In Restaurant in Rostraver Township featured delicious hamburgers for 15 cents each. The ad said the "new and modern" restaurant had moved "across the street from out last location."

■ Frankie Barr and his Dixieland Band were featured every Friday and Saturday night in the new and air-conditioned Basin Street Room at the Park Casino in Monessen. There were no cover or minimum charges, and reservations were available at Murray 4-6161.

■ Roller skating was the specialty in the beautiful Blue Room at the Bee-Hive (formerly the Jumpin' Jive Bee-Hive) in Charleroi. Admission to the air-conditioned entertainment center was only 40 cents.

■ Feature films were on the screens at The Verdi (North Belle Vernon), Coyle and State (Charleroi),

Ron PAGLIA

Manos (Monessen), Super 71 (Rostraver) and Hilltop (Carroll) theaters.

A reader in Monongahela, meanwhile, forwarded some clippings from The Daily Republican of Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1944. He said they are from his grandfather's collection of sports history and included these stories:

■ Monongahela High School defeated New Kensington, 7-0, in a Monday night game at the Wildcats' field. Clarence Barkey scored the MHS touchdown on a two-yard plunge and kicked the extra point as the Cats topped their record to 4-3-0. Head coach Harry McCurdy returned to the helm after being sidelined with an eye infection since Sept. 24. The Wildcats were guided by assistant coach Harry Johnson during McCurdy's absence.

■ Roscoe Ross rambled for four touchdowns to lead Donora's unbeaten Dragons to a 37-13 win over defending Mon Valley Conference champion Brownsville. Ross hit paydirt on runs of 83, 49, seven and 10 yards as Donora posted its seventh win against no losses or ties. Deacon Dan Towler scored the other DHS touchdowns and Pete Cecconi plunged in for the lone extra point. An estimated 10,600 fans jammed the Woodward Plan stadium in Brownsville to watch the showdown between the Dragons and Brownies.

IS THERE HELP FOR MY WRINKLED DROOPY LIDS?

Every year, over one hundred thousand men and women decide to have blepharoplasty surgery to improve their appearance. Not only can droopy lids, puffiness and bags make you look older than you are and older than you feel, but they can impair your vision as well. Some blepharoplasty surgery is elective, but many times it can be covered by your health insurance if it is impairing your peripheral vision. A quick, simple test called a visual field can determine if your procedure would be covered under your insurance. If your procedure is not covered by insurance, we offer convenient interest free financing.

Blepharoplasty is performed under a local anesthetic with a small amount of IV sedation. Two lids usually takes about one hour, four lids approximately 2 hours. During surgery a small incision is made and the excess fat, muscle, and loose skin are removed. Very fine sutures are used to close the incisions which are usually self dissolving.

Today's Highlight

On Oct. 8, 1871, the Great Chicago Fire erupted; fires also broke out in Peshtigo, Wis., and in several communities in Michigan.

On this date:

■ In 1869, the 14th president of the United States, Franklin Pierce, died in Concord, N.H.

■ In 1918, Sgt. Alvin C. York almost single-handedly killed 25 German soldiers and helped capture 132 in the Argonne Forest in France.

■ In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted by a grand jury in New Jersey for murder in the death of the son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

■ In 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that the secret of the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

■ In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game in a World Series to date as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in Game 5, 2-0.

■ In 1957, the Brooklyn Baseball Club announced it was accepting an offer to move the Dodgers from New York to Los Angeles.

■ In 1959, the Los Angeles Dodgers won the World Series, defeating the Chicago White Sox 9-3 in Game 6 at Comiskey Park.

■ In 1970, Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn was named winner of the Nobel Prize for literature.

■ In 1981, at the White House, President Ronald Reagan greeted former Presidents Jimmy Carter, Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon, who were preparing to travel to Egypt for the funeral of Anwar Sadat.

■ In 1982, all labor organizations in Poland, including Solidarity, were banned.

■ Ten years ago: A damage award to State Farm auto insurance customers swelled to nearly $1.2 billion after a judge in Illinois ruled that the nation's largest auto insurer had committed fraud by using generic auto-body repair parts. (However, the Illinois Supreme Court overturned the judgment in 2005.) President Bill Clinton dedicated a new U.S. embassy in Ottawa.

■ Five years ago: In a testy debate rematch, President George W. Bush and Sen. John Kerry quarreled over the war in Iraq, jobs, education, health care, abortion, the environment, cheaper drugs and tort reform at a town hall session in St. Louis. A videotape surfaced showing kidnappers beheading British hostage Kenneth Bigley in Iraq.

■ One year ago: After a day of bouncing higher and lower, Wall Street plunged again. The Dow Jones industrial average lost another 189 points to close at 9,258 — the sixth straight day of losses for the Dow. A gunman killed a men's store employee at Knoxville Center Mall in Tennessee; William Johnson faces charges of felony murder, aggravated kidnapping and attempted murder.

Obama weighs Pakistan's role in winning Afghan war

President's war council is weighing a new role for Pakistan in the 8-year-old struggle in the region.

By JENNIFER LOVEN

AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Recognizing the U.S. can neither win in Afghanistan nor succeed more broadly against al-Qaida without Pakistan's cooperation, President Barack Obama's war council is weighing a new role for Pakistan in the 8-year-old struggle in the region.

Obama planned sessions today with Vice President Joe Biden and Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton in the Oval Office to continue the intense discussion about the increasingly unpopular war in Afghanistan. The White House scheduled another, larger war council session — a fifth of five announced — for Friday, when the focus may finally shift to just how many additional troops would be needed to execute Obama's vision for a war he inherited but now must execute.

Obama's national security team marked the war's eighth anniversary on Wednesday with a three-hour session in a secure room in the White House basement. The focus on Pakistan, the suspected hiding place of Osama bin Laden and other al-Qaida terrorists as well as Taliban leaders, could provide a hint into the president's leanings.

Obama and some of his key aides are increasingly pointing to recent successes against al-Qaida through targeted missile strikes and raids in Pakistan but also in Somalia and elsewhere. Obama said Tuesday that al-Qaida has "lost operational capacity" as a result.

In Pakistan, though, the government has shown new willingness to battle extremists, with most believed to be operating from the largely ungoverned terrain along the border with Afghanistan. But these operations, as well as the strikes by unmanned U.S. aircraft, continue to stoke controversy throughout the country, causing problems for the already weak U.S.-backed civilian government.

The White House revealed that Obama has in hand — and has for nearly a week — the troop request prepared by the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, Gen. Stanley McChrystal. It is said to include a range of options, from adding as few as 10,000 combat troops to — McChrystal's strong preference — as many as 40,000.

White House press secretary Robert Gibbs said Obama asked for McChrystal's request last week before he flew to Copenhagen to lobby for Chicago's bid to host the Olympics and meet with the general on the sidelines. The numbers could become the focus of concentrated White House attention as soon as Friday, Gibbs said.

While Gibbs had said previously that Obama didn't want to see the request until he had determined the strategy, aides said the president decided it had simply become absurd to wait to read it given the high-profile debate.

McChrystal's recommended approach calls for additional troops in Afghanistan for a counterinsurgency campaign to defeat the Taliban, build up the central government and deny al-Qaida a haven. McChrystal, whose plan is somewhat reminiscent of President George W. Bush's Iraq troop surge in 2008, says extra troops — preferably at the higher end of his option range — are crucial to turn around a war that will probably be won or lost over the next 12 months.

On roughly the opposite end of the spectrum, an alternative favored most prominently by Biden would keep the American force in Afghanistan around the 68,000 already authorized, including the 21,000 extra troops Obama ordered earlier this year, but increase the use of surgical strikes with unmanned Predator drones and special forces.

Health care plan progressing

Congressional Budget Office issues favorable report.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democrats are breathing a sigh of relief after a positive cost report on health care overhaul gave them a chance to rally around a Senate plan that significantly expands coverage while trimming the federal deficit.

The Congressional Budget Office said Wednesday that the latest version of the Senate Finance Committee proposal would expand coverage to 94 percent of all eligible Americans at a 10-year cost of $829 billion.

The budget umpire added that the legislation would reduce federal deficits by $81 billion over a decade.

In addition, it said, the plan could lead to continued reductions in federal red ink in the years beyond.

But the middle-of-the-road plan still leaves about 25 million people uninsured when fully phased in, in 2019. Of those, nearly 17 million would be U.S. citizens or legal residents. Nearly 50 million U.S. residents now lack coverage.

The White House hailed the report as proof of what President Barack Obama has insisted all along.

"The analysis confirms that we can provide stability and security for Americans with insurance and affordable options for uninsured Americans without adding a dime to the deficit — and saving money over the long term," said spokesman Reid Cherlin.

Conservative Democrats were upbeat. Rep. Jim Matheson, D-Utah, a spokesman for the fiscally conservative Blue Dog Coalition, said he was encouraged that the Finance bill would cut the deficit and indicated that he'd like to see the House bill move in the same direction.

THE WORLD BRIEFLY

More flight delays likely in U.S.

DALLAS (AP) — Lengthy airline delays are twice as common now as in 1990 and will get worse as the economy recovers, according to a Brookings Institution report released today.

The researchers said much of the problem is due to heavy concentrations of short trips between big cities, but they also cited an "ill-equipped" air traffic control system and other factors.

They suggested increasing high-speed rail service to offer travelers alternatives to short flights.

They also recommended letting busy airports charge fees on rush-hour flights to make airlines spread trips more evenly through the day.

According to Brookings, 10.1 percent of all flights now arrive at least two hours late, up from 4.3 percent in 1990. The average delay is nearly an hour, 41 minutes longer than in 1990.

Some findings in the Brookings report were hardly surprising. The researchers found New York to be the worst metro area in the country for late flights, something that has been evident in monthly on-time reports from the Transportation Department.

About 30 percent of arrivals and 22 percent of departures in New York are late.

The Brookings researchers found most delays concentrated in 26 cities — especially New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Miami, Atlanta and San Francisco. Large cities with the best on-time performance were Salt Lake City, Honolulu and San Jose, Calif.

On-time performance has improved lately because airlines have cut flights during the recession.

But as the economy recovers, so will air travel — meaning more delays — said Adie Tomer, co-author of the report.

Budget deficit hits record $1.4T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit tripled to a record $1.4 trillion for the 2009 fiscal year that ended last week, congressional analysts said Wednesday.

The Congressional Budget Office estimate, while expected, is bad news for the White House and its allies in Congress as they press ahead with health care overhaul legislation that could cost $900 billion over the next decade.

The unprecedented flood of red ink flows from several factors, including a big drop in tax revenues due to the recession, $245 billion in emergency spending on the Wall Street bailout and the takeover of mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

Then there is almost $200 billion in costs from President Barack Obama's economic stimulus bill, as well as increases in programs such as unemployment benefits and food stamps.

'PENNSYLVANIA CASH 5'

HARRISBURG (AP) — Today's "Pennsylvania Cash 5" jackpot will be worth at least $575,000 because no player matched the five winning numbers drawn in Wednesday's game.

Lottery officials said 133 players matched four numbers and won $223.50 each; 4,587 players matched three numbers and won $11 each; and 54,552 players matched two numbers and won $1 each.

OUR OPINION

Onorato doesn't represent reform

"FARCE" ONCE WAS described as being real people in unusual predicaments. Welcome to the gubernatorial candidacy of Dan Onorato.

The former Pittsburgh councilman, former Allegheny County controller and sitting county chief executive — also an accountant and lawyer — formally entered the race Tuesday for the Democrats' 2010 nomination for Pennsylvania governor.

And this accomplished pol (and that's not necessarily an accolade) did so touting a platform of "real reform" and wanting "to change the status quo."

How bizarre, for Mr. Onorato is, in so many ways, the antithesis of those sentiments.

At the helm of Allegheny County's home rule government for the past six years, Onorato is a master of manipulating people, perverting the rule of law, exploiting the legal system and just plain doublespeak.

Think of the Democrat-controlled County Council regularly doing his bidding.

Think of his state Constitution-bashing property tax reassessment machinations.

Think of how he abused both the county administrative code and charter to battle drink-tax opponents.

Think of his duplicity in claiming he had a legal opinion that affirmed his expansive plan to spend drink-tax revenue.

Think of his bogus claims about how wonderful the new Port Authority contract is — never mind that it remains a sop to organized labor.

This isn't "reform." Neither is it "changing the status quo." It's merely Democrat politics as usual. And that's the farce on which Dan Onorato seeks the governorship.

ANOTHER VIEW

The Daily News Journal, Murfreesboro, Tenn., on neighborhood watch programs:

Besides the traditional Neighborhood Watch programs that encourage residents to keep an eye out for local crime, Americans are learning they need to be vigilant for global terrorism, too.

The September arrest of Najibullah Zazi stemmed, in part, from his purchase of a large quantity of beauty supply products from Denver area stores where a Colorado store clerk tipped off police about the suspicious activity.

The Major Cities Chiefs Association, formed by police chiefs in the largest cities in America and Canada, cited that clerk's actions over the weekend as they endorsed the iWatch program as an easy way for citizens to combat terror.

Some groups warn, however, that these guidelines are too broad and could lead to the violation of people's civil rights. For example, one of the suspicious activities is listed as wearing clothes too big or heavy for the weather. ...

Nevertheless, we are all a little wiser and a little more wary of the world around us with the terror of Sept. 11, 2001, still clear in our memory.

Vigilance might have been able to stop some 3,000 people from being brutally killed that day. ...

In the 21st century, Neighborhood Watch means more than calling authorities about suspicious activity on your street. It also means letting authorities know when you see the potential for terrorism. That's a harsh reality, but it is the world we live in.

Valley OPINION

Decline of Roman's empire

"We demand the immediate release of Roman Polanski."

About 110 Hollywood luminaries, including Martin Scorsese, David Lynch and Woody Allen, signed a petition in immediate reaction to the long-overdue arrest of director Roman Polanski for drugging and raping a 13-year-old girl in 1977. Polanski, who directed "Rosemary's Baby," among other movies, pleaded guilty to unlawful sexual intercourse with a minor in 1978 and then fled the country. He has not been back to the United States since, not even to accept an Academy Award for "The Pianist" in 2003.

"Filmmakers in France, in Europe, in the United States and around the world are dismayed by this decision," the petition read. The moviemakers who signed it were miffed by the fact that "an international cultural event, paying homage to one of the greatest contemporary filmmakers," was used by police as an opportunity to capture the honoree.

What nerve! After all, Polanski committed a crime. But an artist is a precocious type. He is encouraged to break rules, push boundaries. One concludes this may be the art community's view of the matter, based on the mad rush to the director's defense. As actress Debra Winger explained, "the whole art world suffers" with his arrest.

"Medium" star Patricia Arquette called the situation "complicated" during a red-carpet moment with CNN about Polanski's arrest. "I have very mixed personal feelings," former "Friends" star Lisa Kudrow said. "Who are we to say?" "Biggest Loser" trainer Jillian Michaels asked. After all, Polanski's victim has forgiven him. Shouldn't the law?

It's a lot less complicated than the Hollywood "community" lets on. He pleaded guilty. And even if he hadn't, a 43-year-old authority figure can't really have consensual sex with a 13-year-old, anyway. Hollywood would have agreed with the above idea if the perpetrator were a Catholic priest and the minor a 17-year-old. But morality is relative.

When Bill Clinton was president, he lied under oath and abused his power to satisfy his sexual urges; it was said, time and time again, that people should be more sophisticated about the whole matter. We troglodytes who cared about law and accountability were told that lies about sex — even when they amount to perjury, even when there are crimes committed — don't really matter. Despite the president being impeached by the House of Representatives, that view was rampant among American elites. You see continuing fallout in the fall of Roman.

During those Clinton years, former Democrat Bill Bennett wrote in "The Death of Outrage," about these calls for concerned Americans to be more "European." He said at the time: "If these arguments take root in American soil — if they become the coin of the public realm — we will have validated them, and we will come to rue the day we did. These arguments define us down; they assume a lower common denominator of behavior and leadership than we Americans ought to accept."

The former secretary of education and author of "The Book of Virtues" warned: "If we do accept it, we will have committed an unthinking act of moral and intellectual disarmament. In the realm of American ideals and the great tradition of public debate, the high ground will have been lost."

Given the breadth and depth of some of the prominent defenses of Polanski, an admitted rapist, there is something similar going on here. We're staring at a moral abyss and choosing whether to jump in it. With every "it's complicated" we're being challenged.

Polanski explained in a profanity-filled 1979 interview why what he did was not such a big deal: "If I had killed somebody, it wouldn't have had so much appeal to the press, you see? But (having sex), you see, and the young girls. Judges want to (have sex with) young girls. Juries want to (have sex with) young girls. Everyone wants to (have sex with) young girls!"

How's that for lowest common denominator?

I'm a Catholic who was grateful to the Boston Globe and others for forcing Catholics to confront the moral rot within the Church during those infamous molestation scandals almost a decade ago. Thank you, Woody Allen and co. for forcing a similar confrontation. The question now is: Will our consciences remain steadfast? Will Polanski finally face our justice system? Or will we surrender basic morality to the high priests of Hollywood?

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Health insurance reality

To the Editor:

On Sept. 29, you ran a story by Associated Press writer Beth Fouhy titled, "Many playing the odds on health care gamble."

The parts she got right were a huge portion of young people, and healthy individuals gamble by not buying health care and are a big part of the 47 million who have no health insurance. If those people had to have coverage just like they have to have car insurance, the risk would be spread over 47 million more people and drop the cost of everyone's coverage.

The parts she got wrong is that these people do not have coverage because it is too expensive. In the Pittsburgh area, a healthy, non-smoking male up to age 40 can be insured for $95 or less. A female, with maternity coverage included, is $158 or less.

Her examples of Krista Neher and Jason Jebson just don't hold water. Mr. Jebson thinks he is saving money by paying providers directly. I hope he never has a real bill for serious injury or sickness. Most providers expect to be paid the billed amount. Even if you have a ridiculously high deductible plan, the bill is repaid to the agreed amount with the insurance company. Mary Pittman, 54, is playing the same gamble. The $3,000 per year she is pre-taxing in an FSA wouldn't pay for a two-day hospital stay. She would be far better off putting half or more of that money in a high deductible health plan, which would limit her exposure in a catastrophic health event.

Health insurers do deny coverage for pre-existing conditions, but if you have had continuous coverage for 18 months or more, you are eligible for guaranteed health coverage. If you have group coverage that ends involuntarily, you are eligible for Cobra at 35 percent of the premium cost for nine months. So a $1,000 family policy would cost you $350.

There are no insurers I know of that can cancel you because you have claims. In this state, for sure, as long as you pay premiums the insurer has to keep you insured. It is always a good idea as we get older to get our own individual policy for that reason, especially if you don't lead a particularly healthy lifestyle.

She argues that many people in low-paying jobs simply cannot afford health coverage. Again in this state, there are a number of low-income options. CHIP is available to all children. A family of four can earn up to $42,400 and get CHIP for free. A family of four can earn up to $63,600 and get low-cost CHIP. A single person earning less than $20,800 is eligible for guaranteed issue special care at $134 per month. That person would also be eligible for adult basic at less than $40 per month. There is currently a waiting list for this program.

For so long, we were all covered by company health plans at no cost or low cost to each of us. More and more services were built in. People took more and more advantage of their health coverage with no thought to what it cost. More and more health issues were solved by an expensive pill. People paid little attention to changing lifestyles in favor of a drug to solve their problems.

Then one day the cost of the coverage got to where the employers said they cannot afford it anymore. People never had to think about it; it was there and nobody really understood it other than when they needed it there was a $10 co-pay.

Now people are looking, but because it is such a complicated area it is very difficult for people to navigate on their own. If you are looking for health coverage at any age, seek out a specialist who primarily sells health insurance.

Be sure you understand the coverage you are buying. Ask for a second opinion if you are not sure. Be sure your doctors and hospitals participate with that company.

Remember you can cancel any time, but don't ever cancel what you have until you have other coverage in place.

VP Biden Obama's political pointman

Former Delaware senator is spending roughly 25% of his time on electoral politics.

By LIZ SIDOTI
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Vice President Joe Biden successfully pressed former Senate colleague Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania to abandon the GOP and become a Democrat. The vice president also helped ensure that newly appointed New York Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand won't face a Democratic primary. And this fall, Biden's schedule is packed with fundraisers for two Democrats in upcoming governors' races, and for a slew of House freshmen and other vulnerable members of Congress as well as longtime friends and troubled incumbents in the Senate — a full year before 2010 midterm congressional elections. No stranger to campaigning, Biden has become a political workhorse for President Barack Obama. The former Delaware senator is spending roughly a quarter of his time on electoral politics as Democrats defend gubernatorial seats in Virginia and New Jersey this fall and prepare to protect their comfortable majorities in Congress next fall.

Unlike Obama, who is handling a full plate of policy issues and has been in Washington just five years, Biden has the time to devote to campaigns and to the long relationships he's cultivated during his 36 years in the Senate. The vice president also appeals to voting demographics that sometimes were cool to Obama during the presidential campaign and that are pivotal constituencies: working-class whites, independents and senior citizens among them.

"He has a little more freedom and flexibility to do things than the president does," said Ron Klain, Biden's chief of staff. "There are places where you probably can't employ the president, things that are harder for the president to do and easier for the vice president to do."

Like make it clear to New York Rep. Carolyn Maloney that the White House was backing Gillibrand. (Maloney eventually decided not to run.) Or prod longtime friend Specter to switch parties. Or host countless fundraisers in regions filled with fickle voters who could pose problems for Democrats but whom Biden attracts with his blue-collar upbringing and plainspoken pitch.

"He is someone who can connect with swing voters and particularly with some of the groups that are most at risk for us in the 2010 elections," Klain said. While the country's No. 2 Democrat is a certain money draw, candidates face risks with Biden. After all, this is a shoot-from-the-lip kind of guy. He raised eyebrows recently by predicting doom for Obama's agenda if Republicans win dozens of Democratic House seats in traditional GOP-leaning districts. Said Biden, "If they take them back, this is the end of the road for what Barack and I are trying to do."

And despite his long Senate tenure, he's not known for being a politically savvy electoral strategist. He never served at the helm of the Democratic National Committee or the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

All told, Biden will have hosted at least 48 events in at least 22 states and Washington between March, when he headlined an event in Little Rock, Ark., for Sen. Blanche Lincoln, and Nov. 21, when he speaks at the

Vice President Biden

Iowa Democratic Party's Jefferson Jackson dinner. He's fundraising for party campaign committees as well as for individuals at the direction of the White House and at the request of old friends.

This week alone, he has held events for Connecticut Rep. Jim Himes in Greenwich, Conn., New Hampshire Rep. Paul Hodes in New York, New Jersey Gov. Jon Corzine in Atlantic City and North Carolina Rep. Larry Kissell in Washington. He's in Virginia on Thursday for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Creigh Deeds.

"He's having an impact all over the country," White House chief of staff Rahm Emanuel said. "The vice president can go anywhere. His range is diverse."

In many cases, Biden is raising money for House incumbents in swing regions full of volatile voters.

Arena payment sought from Pittsburgh casino

Slots parlor must start paying $7.5M per year to area project or face fines.

By JEREMY BOREN
For The Valley Independent
jboren@tribweb.com

Rivers Casino must begin paying $7.5 million per year toward Pittsburgh's new hockey arena or it could be fined, according to a complaint filed Wednesday with the state Gaming Control Board.

For the first time, the board's Office of Enforcement Counsel acknowledged that the casino's ownership group, Holdings Acquisition Co., missed a Sept. 15 deadline to make the first of 30 yearly payments to the Sports & Exhibition Authority, which is building the $325 million Consol Energy Center.

Doug Harbach, a spokesman for the Gaming Control Board, said the board must meet to accept or reject the complaint filed by E. Barry Creany, deputy enforcement counsel.

A special meeting could be scheduled before the board's next regular meeting on Oct. 21. A separate complaint seeks an expedited response from The Rivers' ownership by Oct. 14.

"Should Holdings fail to make any payments, there (could) be a monetary penalty or fine," Harbach said.

Dan Fee, a spokesman for Holdings Acquisition Co., declined to comment. Detroit businessman Don Barden signed an agreement in July 2006 with the SEA to pay $7.5 million a year to guarantee payment of the SEA's $313.3 million arena bond issue.

Chicago developer Neil Bluhm led an investment team to take over the casino when Barden ran out of money to build it in 2008. Bluhm agreed to make good on the promises made by Barden, who retains a 20 percent stake.

Mary Conturo, SEA executive director, declined to comment on yesterday's filing, saying she hadn't read the complaint.

The Penguins are chipping in $4.1 million a year and the state is contributing $7.5 million a year from a development fund fed by casino tax revenues. The three payments together would repay the bond on the arena at a rate of $19.1 million a year.

The complaint warns if Bluhm's group fails to make the payments, state taxpayers "will be harmed because the Commonwealth will be obligated to pay the authority for the amount of the special revenues that Holdings fails to pay."

The state already has been forced to contribute additional money to the project. Skyrocketing interest rates on a variable rate bond the SEA used to finance the arena created a $5.08 million interest payment that the SEA was unable to pay. Since the state guaranteed the bonds, Gov. Ed Rendell approved paying the money from the state's gaming economic development fund.

The complaint also includes an alternative payment schedule for The Rivers' owners. Under the new schedule, the casino's owners would pay in two installments each year for 30 years, instead of making an annual payment every.

It's unclear if Holdings Acquisition Co. officials have agreed to the proposed payment schedule. If they agree, the first $2.35 million payment would be due Oct. 25 and a second payment of $5.15 million would be due April 25.

California Area expects to raise $2M for stadium naming rights

National search eyed for a firm interested in putting its name on new complex.

By TOM BUCKLEY
For The Valley Independent

California Area School District officials are looking for a name for their new football stadium.

And they're hoping the folks behind that name will give the district more than $2 million for the privilege.

"I'm going to make a dream come true by putting the name of the stadium up for auction," said Superintendent Linda Mancini.

She said the district will go nationwide to find the highest bidder interested in obtaining naming rights to the new stadium, which was dedicated last Friday shortly before the Trojans defeated visiting Mapletown, 41-6, in a Tri-Country South conference game.

The bidding, she said, is expected to start at $2 million.

Mancini developed the auction plan to help pay off a PNC Bank loan the district obtained to develop the $4.5 million stadium, which is also home to the school's soccer teams.

She presided at Friday's dedication festivities, which included a ceremonial ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The stadium originally was scheduled to open on Sept. 18, but the dedication was delayed because construction was not complete. The new stadium is part of a plan first conceived in 2003 that also involved construction of nearby baseball and softball fields.

Softball dugouts, a field house and additional parking are still planned for the sports complex.

We'll fast forward 20 years to Friday, July 31, 1964 because that's the date on information sent via regular mail from an anonymous sports fan.

He (or she) did not sign the brief note in the plain white envelope that did not have a return address, but here's what was highlighted:

■ The Irondale Athletic Club of Donora announced plans for the first William "Bull" McCleary Memorial Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament August 15-16 at Palmer Park. Chairman John Moses, founder of the IAC and owner of the Irondale Hotel, said proceeds from the tournament will go toward a fund to establish a memorial for McCleary, the former Donora High School and Waynesburg College football standout who died in October 1963.

■ Former Monessen High and California State College grid star John Bogovich was set to report to training camp tomorrow with the Wheeling Ironmen of the United Football League. Bogovich, 25, was a 5-11, 192-pound pass receiver who lettered four years at Cal State and was named to the Williamson System Small College All-American team as a senior. Among his teammates at Wheeling was veteran Carl Crawley, also a former standout at Monessen High and California State.

■ Linebacker Terry O'Toole, another Monessen High graduate, was named to the starting defensive lineup for the Pennsylvania team in the annual Big 33 Classic against Texas at Hershey Stadium. O'Toole was a 5-11, 190-pound all-state guard and linebacker for the Greyhounds in 1963. Bill Abraham, of Hempfield, an assistant to George "Lefty" James on the Big 33 staff, lauded O'Toole as "a standout in practice with his hard-hitting play."

As always, we're grateful to those who send these reminders of Yesteryear.

Picking area football winners

Taking a look at this weekend's area football games after going 6-3 to bring my season record to 38-9:

WAYNESBURG AT CHARLEROI

Coached for the first year by former California mentor Joe Kuhns, Waynesburg has been struggling with a 1-4 start. The victory came over winless South Allegheny (27-7) with defeats to Washington (24-0), Mt. Pleasant (36-13), Jeannette (48-6) and Greensburg Central Catholic (40-0). Charleroi is riding a four-game winning streak highlighted by last week's 26-20 victory at Jeannette. The Cougars snapped a four-game losing skid against Waynesburg with last year's 14-13 win. The Cougars could be looking ahead to next week's showdown with once-beaten McGuffey. It shouldn't make a difference. The pick is Charleroi by three touchdowns.

BELLE VERNON AREA AT TRINITY

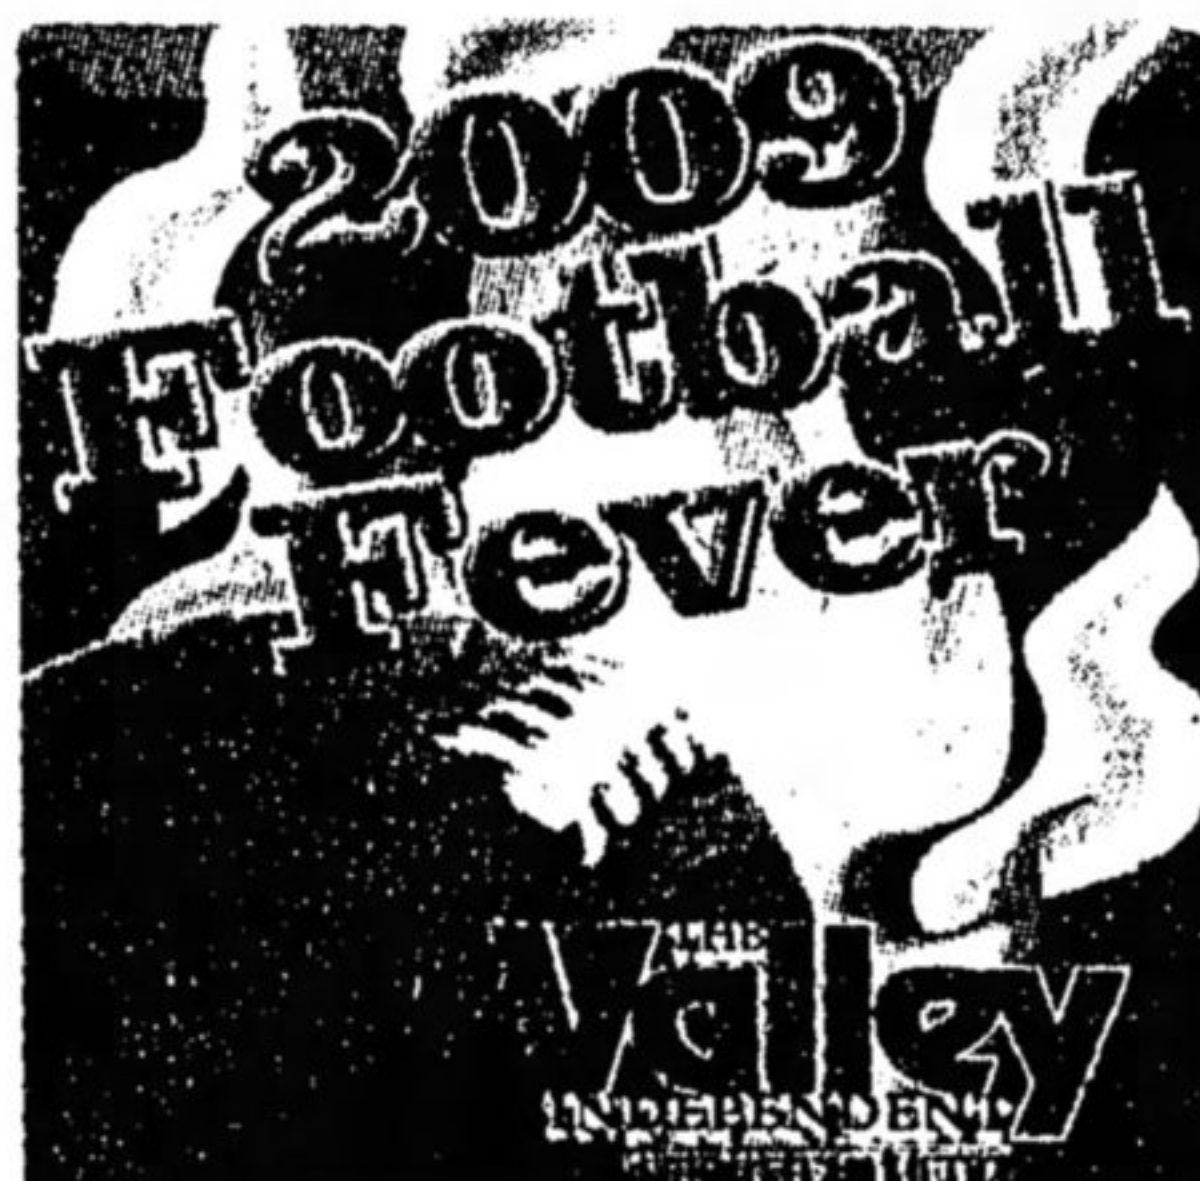

Don't be fooled by the Hillers' 1-4 record. Two of Trinity's losses were on the road to unbeaten Thomas Jefferson (34-7) and Chartiers Valley (30-12). The other setbacks were to Quad A Canon-McMillan (36-22) and Keystone co-leader Greensburg Salem (10-7). The Hillers' win came over Elizabeth Forward (21-7). Trinity quarterback Andrew Steratore, son of NFL referee Gene Steratore, has thrown for more than 500 yards and five touchdowns. Trinity coach Ed Dalton had to miss last year's 14-7 upset loss to the Leps after getting ejected the previous week. The hard-luck Leps lose another close one by three points.

CHARTIERS VALLEY AT RINGGOLD

Ringgold won't have to worry about defending dangerous sophomore quarterback Wayne Capers, who's out with a foot injury after accounting for nearly 900 total offense yards and scoring 11 touchdowns. Senior wide receiver Rob LaMonde will be calling the signals for the unbeaten Colts, who've disposed of West Allegheny (28-24), Yough (54-0), Belle Vernon Area (41-21), West Mifflin (28-20) and Trinity (30-12). The Colts' Beau Carson is a threat as both a runner and receiver. The Rams have been outscored 71-21 in their Big 7 losses to TJ and Elizabeth Forward. The Colts are making their first trip to Ringgold since a 35-12 victory in 2005. Even without Capers, and TJ coming up next, Chartiers Valley stays unbeaten by four touchdowns.

ELIZABETH FORWARD AT THOMAS JEFFERSON

One of the Big 7 Conference's more heated rivalries got a little hotter when Elizabeth coach Garry Cathell had some unkind words on TJ coach Bill Cherpak that made the papers following the Warriors' 35-0 loss to the Jaguars last season. TJ hasn't lost to Elizabeth in more than a decade and has outscored the Warriors, 311-21, in their last six meetings. TJ is riding a 41-game winning streak against WPIAL teams. The Jaguars haven't been tested in the conference, with romps over Trinity (34-7) and Ringgold (41-7) and are coming off a 55-0 rout of Laurel Highlands. Elizabeth snapped a two-game skid with a 30-14 win over Ringgold. TJ pours it on by four touchdowns.

MONESSEN AT GEIBEL

The Greyhounds are playing their first Saturday afternoon game since beating Riverview, 42-7, in the second contest of 2007. Geibel has played only one home game, losing to California (49-21). The Gators own wins over West Greene (29-7) and Bentworth (27-21) with their other losses to Avella (44-28) and Jefferson-Morgan (47-19). Monessen hasn't lost to the Gators since 1990, 7-6. The Greyhounds have outscored the Gators, 128-18, in their last three meetings and have a winning margin of 37 points in their last 10 games. Go with Monessen by four touchdowns.

CARMICHAELS AT CALIFORNIA

The Mikes have been struggling under coach John Menhart, the school's principal who returned after winning 81 games in 14 seasons before stepping down in 2002. Carmichaels' lone win was at Mapletown (36-6) with defeats to Fort Cherry (28-2), Chartiers-Houston (34-21), Beth-Center (28-6) and Jefferson-Morgan (20-15). The Mikes' Anthony Farrar averages 115 yards a game rushing and quarterback Jon Krall averages 110 passing. Carmichaels is 8-2 in its last 10 games with the Trojans including a wild 40-39 victory last year. Go with California to win its Homecoming by eight points.

GREENSBURG SALEM AT YOUGH

The Golden Lions have won four in a row after opening with a 40-7 loss at Quad A Hempfield. Greensburg Salem's victims include Trinity (10-7), Albert Gallatin (28-6), Belle Vernon Area (20-19) and Uniontown (18-0). With 560 yards, the Golden Lions' Matt Adams is the Keystone's premier running back. Last year, Yough posted a 36-27 win in Greensburg. The Cougars, however, have scored only four touchdowns this season. The last time the Golden Lions visited Cougar Mountain, they went home a 14-6 winner in 2004. It won't be that close this time. Greensburg Salem spoils Yough's Homecoming by four touchdowns.

BURGETTSTOWN AT FRAZIER

The Blue Devils are coming off wins over Bentworth (42-21) and Chartiers-Houston (21-6) and edged Beth-Center (7-6) on the road. Both of Burgettstown's losses were at home to South Side Beaver (27-20) and Serra (35-6). Burgettstown has plenty of weapons with sophomore quarterback Dylan Bongiorno and senior running backs A.J. Roney and Zac Bertolotti. Roney is averaging 100 yards a game with Bertolotti coming off a three-TD game against Bentworth. In their first meeting last year, Burgettstown was a 28-14 Homecoming winner. Go with the Blue Devils by two touchdowns.

BENTWORTH AT SERRA

The once-beaten Eagles feature a high-powered offense led by quarterback Rob Heatherington, who's thrown for more than 500 yards and seven touchdowns and run for

Penalties cost Pens

Pittsburgh penalties create nine power plays in 3-0 loss to Phoenix.

By ALAN ROBINSON

PITTSBURGH — The Stanley Cup champion Pittsburgh Penguins' first bad game of the season was more than that. It was Coyote ugly.

Petr Prucha was knocked off his skates in front of the net but still pushed the puck into the net while down on a Penguins player's back in the second period, and the Phoenix Coyotes took advantage of nine power plays to beat Pittsburgh 3-0 on Wednesday night.

Ilya Bryzgalov made 24 saves, only a handful of them difficult, as the Penguins played a flat, error-filled and uninspired game before leaving on a difficult five-game road trip that begins Thursday in Philadelphia.

"We weren't able to get a whole lot going. There's no real excuse for it, we weren't good at all, but we've got to move on," captain Sidney Crosby said.

Ed Jovanovski also scored on a power play for Phoenix, which is 2-0 with one game remaining on a season-opening road trip that began with a 6-3 victory at Los Angeles. Last season, the Coyotes managed only 30 points on the road, the fewest in the Western Conference, and won successive games away from home twice.

"Facing the defending Stanley Cup champions, it was a big challenge for us and I think we played well," Bryzgalov said. "It's a good turning point for us. The team has confidence right now."

Pittsburgh tried but failed to start a season 3-0 for the first time since 1995, giving little support to Brent Johnson. He made 22 saves in his first start for the Stanley Cup champions, and hardly could be blamed for one of the Penguins' worst efforts under coach Dan Bylsma.

"I don't think our guys went into the game with a lackadaisical effort," Bylsma said. "I don't think they weren't focused on playing. When you don't execute, you're not paying attention to details, and your brain's not focused on what's

Big Ben relies on bodyguards

Protection from linemen goes beyond WWE show.

By ALAN ROBINSON

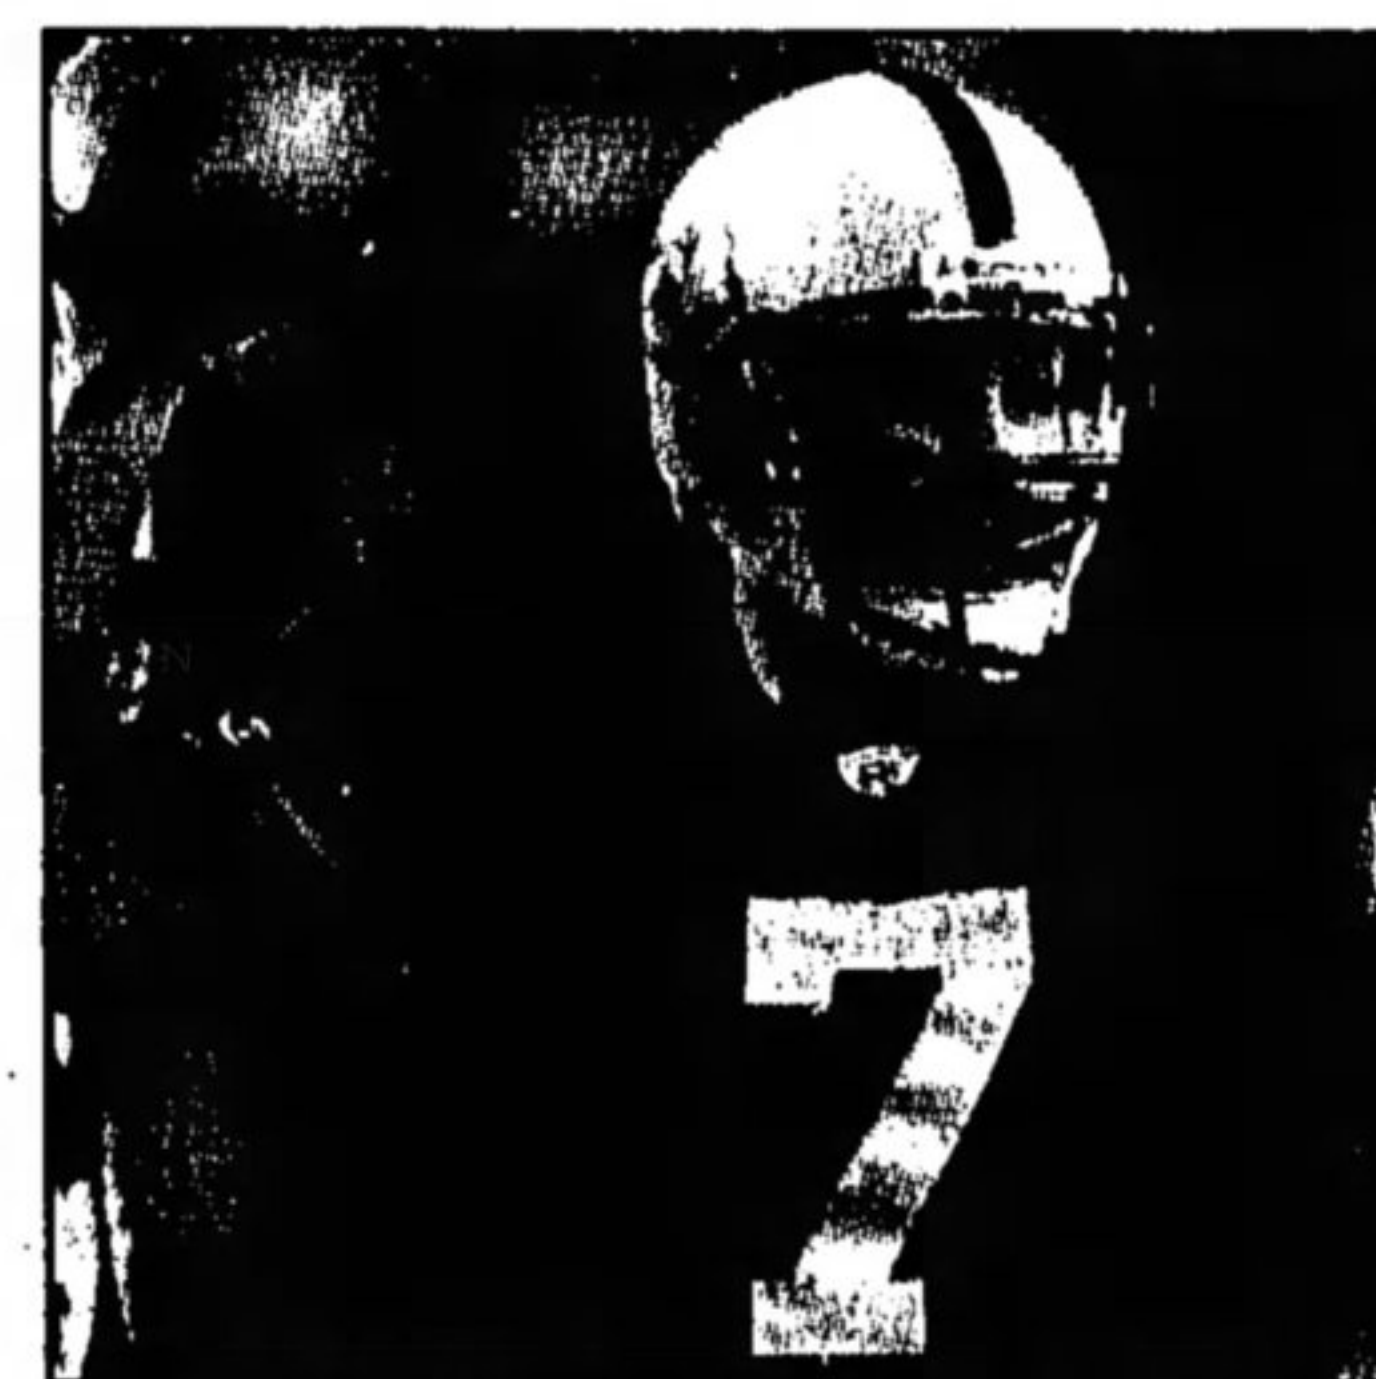

AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Ben Roethlisberger's appearance on the WWE's "Monday Night Raw" telecast didn't register any ratings in Mike Tomlin's household — nobody watched. The Steelers coach preferred that his three young children spend time wrestling with their homework.

While Tomlin wasn't excited about his quarterback's in-season sideshow, any coach would have liked this display of teamwork: Roethlisberger made sure his linemen were part of the act, too.

Roethlisberger's stats are up this season and his sack total is down, and it's not coincidental. An offensive line that was viewed as the Steelers' weakness a season ago is playing much better, as evidenced by Rashard Mendenhall's 165 yards rushing and Roethlisberger's 333 yards passing and 78.8 completion percentage during a 38-28 victory over San Diego on Sunday.

"We've been able to run more plays offensively, stay on the field longer and converted a lot of third downs and held the ball for a long time," tight end Heath Miller said Wednesday.

No wonder Big Ben wanted his bodyguards around when he went on TV.

"We don't want to be considered the weak link of the offense, like we have been," right tackle Willie Colon said. "We don't want to be considered the guys that, well, we don't know what's going to happen to them that day. We want to be a force out there, we hold each other accountable and we play hard."

The offensive line of left tackle

Max Starks, left guard Chris Kemoeatu, center Justin Hartwig, right guard Trai Essex and Colon also is a throwback to a different time when NFL players, especially those who weren't married, would hang out with each other after practice.

More common these days is for players to depart one by one in their SUVs shortly after practice ends. But, a year ago, after the Steelers installed four new starters along the line, the linemen began meeting on Thursday nights — socially, for sure, but also to watch extra game tape.

"We're always reaching for the ceiling," Hartwig said. "There's always room for improvement. Anybody who turns on the tape can see that."

The linemen were aware of the criticism they were getting for the frequent sacks Roethlisberger was absorbing — 46 last season and 139 over the last three seasons. They wanted to do something about it, even though they already spend hour upon hour at their training complex most days.

"I think what's a blessing for us, nobody is in this business to be OK," Colon said. "We all want to be

A critical bond

Communication and trust between a team's crew chief and driver is essential for on-track success, especially for those in the Chase

BY DAVID SCOTT
McClatchy Newspapers

As Jeff Gordon's Chevrolet continued to misbehave in the early portions of last week's Sprint Cup race at Kansas Speedway, crew chief Steve Letarte had a job to do.

In addition to figuring out what adjustments to make to the car, he also had to manage the emotions of his driver.

"I'm telling you, I didn't think any communication skills in the world were going to fix that thing," said Gordon, who admitted to acting like a "bear" on the radio with Letarte. "I thought we were going to have to come down and change four spring shocks and sway bars."

"I definitely give Steve a lot of credit for not panicking."

Gordon, after Letarte figured out what needed tending to, finished second.

As the Chase for the Sprint Cup hits the meat of its schedule — heading to the Auto Club Speedway in Fontana, Calif., for Sunday's Pepsi 500 — the bond between a team's two most important components becomes all the more critical.

"Whether it's a new group just getting together or a group that's been together for a long time, it just gets back to the relationship you have with the crew chief in handling heat-of-the-moment battles," Kurt Busch said.

Some of those relationships are in a state of flux around the Cup garage. Busch's crew chief, Pat Tryson, has helped the No. 2 Dodge team to fifth in the Chase standings, but he's already announced he's leaving the team at the end of the season for Michael Waltrip Racing.

And who knows what's happening with driver Greg Biffle and his crew chief Greg Erwin, after Biffle overruled Erwin on a crucial tires decision late in the race at Kansas. That choice of four tires instead of two likely cost Biffle the race.

Darian Grubb, who is in his first season as Tony Stewart's crew chief, said he overheard

JASON SMITH FOR NASCAR

Crew chief Steve Letarte, left, and driver Jeff Gordon finished second in the Price Chopper 400 at Kansas Speedway on Sunday.

Erwin and Biffle going back and forth about the decision on the radio.

Grubb and Stewart were of the same mind and elected to change two. It was a race-winning decision and an example of the kind of synergy that helped them to the top of the standings for much of the season (they're now fourth).

Stewart hired Grubb last winter as he prepared for his first season as an owner-driver with Stewart-Haas Motorsports.

"Honestly, when we started this thing in the spring, I mean, there were times when I was sitting in the car, and I told him what my balance was, and he told me what we were going to change, and I was like, wow, is that the right way to go?" said Stewart, who won two titles with Joe Gibbs Motorsports and crew chief Greg Zipadelli. "I told him that, too. It's just learning each other."

"There were times the first couple races where I didn't necessarily understand why we were doing something. But when you go out there and it responds positively to those changes, you gain that confidence right away. And I do. I have the same confidence in Darian that I had in Zippy for 10 years."

It doesn't appear that Busch and Tryson are at full strength as they try to win a second championship for Busch. Tryson is only in the team's Penske Motorsports headquarters one day a week — Tuesday, when he meets with Busch and the organization's department heads. He doesn't see Busch again until they unload the car from the hauler at the race track.

But Busch said the arrangement is working out all right.

"A guy like Pat, he's definitely very animated," said Busch on a conference call earlier this week. "He has a strong sense of what needs to happen and what the driver is going through out on the racetrack."

Martin extends Chase points lead despite seventh place finish

BY SAM MELLINGER
McClatchy Newspapers

NASCAR's 50-year-old wonder kid looked as if his dog ran away. His face washed with gloom, his eyes going to and from a nearby television, his ears unable to escape Tony Stewart's joy from winning Sunday at Kansas Speedway.

Mark Martin slumped in his chair — a seventh-place finish, his worst in six weeks.

It all set up another surly postrace evaluation from Martin, who's everybody's sentimental pick to win his first Sprint Cup championship. Except then he said this:

"I'm proud of this race team."

The words kept coming like this, as Martin extended his points lead over Jimmie Johnson from 10 to 18.

There is an important distinction in Martin's evaluation. He's not necessarily proud of a seventh-place finish, but he will take it considering he was driving what he considered a car that was off by more than it's been in a while.

"I've been, at times, off this much and been in 25th place," Martin said. "If we miss it a little bit and battle and fight and scratch and come up in seventh place, I'm very proud."

Juan Pablo Montoya is among the drivers who say that Martin's consistency — this makes six consecutive top-seven finishes and 16 overall — is frustrating to compete against because it's so difficult to make up ground.

Martin's extra eight points of lead aside, the standings actually tightened a bit. Stewart and Denny Hamlin joined Jimmie Johnson, Montoya and Kurt Busch within 100 points of Martin.

"You can look at anything any way you want," Martin said. "I did and I didn't (extend the lead). I did on (Johnson), but I didn't on several guys. So, look at it however you want. It's a race. Every race, that's how you score points.

"There's, what, seven more to go? We shouldn't be getting all hyped up about the tally right now. We have a lot more racing to go. The races are actually what determines it."

It sets up a dramatic finish in the last seven races of the Chase, one that will continue to generate even more buzz as fans and drivers alike pull for Martin to shed the Buffalo Bills tint to an otherwise standout career that includes four runner-up and four third-place finishes.

Martin actually stepped away from full-time racing three years ago. He's back and rejuvenated, but still careful to talk about his title pursuit in hushed tones. He's been close before. He knows not to tempt fate by letting his thoughts drift too far into the future.

"We just lacked a little bit in getting up there and being able to contend for the win," Martin said. "But we pretty well peaked at the end. Our car was probably the strongest at that last run."

Martin was speaking about Sunday's race, of course, but there's a hoped-for metaphor in there about his own career possibly peaking toward the end, so long as his season peaks toward the end.

The eyes of the NASCAR world will be watching to see if he can complete the sport's feel-good story.

STOP 'N' GO

WHO'S HOT

■ Tony Stewart: Sorry folks, he's not ready to concede the championship to anyone yet.

■ Jeff Gordon: Has been on the rear bumper of the race winner more than anyone else this season.

■ Joey Logano: From wreckers to checkers in a week — not bad.

■ Mark Martin: Three weeks down, seven to go to win his first championship.

WHO'S NOT

■ Brian Vickers: Just as he was getting to the part of the schedule where he is best, his car and championship hope blow up.

■ Greg Biffle: Teasing Roush Fenway drivers with wins just doesn't seem fair.

■ Kyle Busch: Teammates are great, except when they keep beating you to Victory Lane.

Bo Lustig

Bo Lustig qualifies

The news was good and bad for Belle Vernon Area High's Lustig brothers, Bo and Tyber, in Wednesday's WPIAL Individual Golf Championship at Butler Country Club.

The good news was that Bo, a junior, qualified for the PIAA Western Regional Oct. 21 at Tom's Run Golf Course in Blairsville.

The bad news? Tyber, a senior, didn't.

Bo Lustig shot a six over par 77 to finish tied for ninth with Shady Side Academy's Todd Berglund.

Meanwhile, Tyber Lustig was only two off the lead after nine holes before double bogeys on 10, 15 and 18 and six bogeys added up to 48 for a 14 over par 85.

The elder Lustig, who finished in the top 10 as a sophomore and junior, deadlocked for 36th with Elizabeth Forward's Dan Altavilla, Hopewell's Aaron Zimmerman and Shady Side Academy's Robbie Denove.

Latrobe's Ben Gjebre beat Central Catholic's Corey Wagne on the second playoff hole after both shot 73s.

The top 16 golfers in the field of 48 received medals with the top 24 advancing to the Western Regional.

Ringgold's Mike Yavorsky missed the cutoff by two strokes with an 84, finishing with 39 on the back nine.

Bullpen comes through for LA

Dodgers rely on strong relief performances to claim playoff opener.

By BETH HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — On a team without an ace starter, the Los Angeles Dodgers rely heavily on their bullpen. That strategy worked just fine in their NL playoff opener.

Randy Wolf survived a shaky first inning in his postseason debut before five relievers combined to give up one run in the Dodgers' 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Wednesday night in a game full of missed chances for both teams.

"It was a grind from the get-go, and that's the way it's going to be throughout the postseason," said Jeff Weaver, who relieved Wolf and got the victory. "You're facing good lineups and good pitching, and it's going to be an out here or there that can make the difference in the game."

After the Cardinals took a 1-0 lead off Wolf to start the game, Matt Kemp hit a two-run homer off Cardinals ace Chris Carpenter in the bottom half, giving the NL West champions the lead for good.

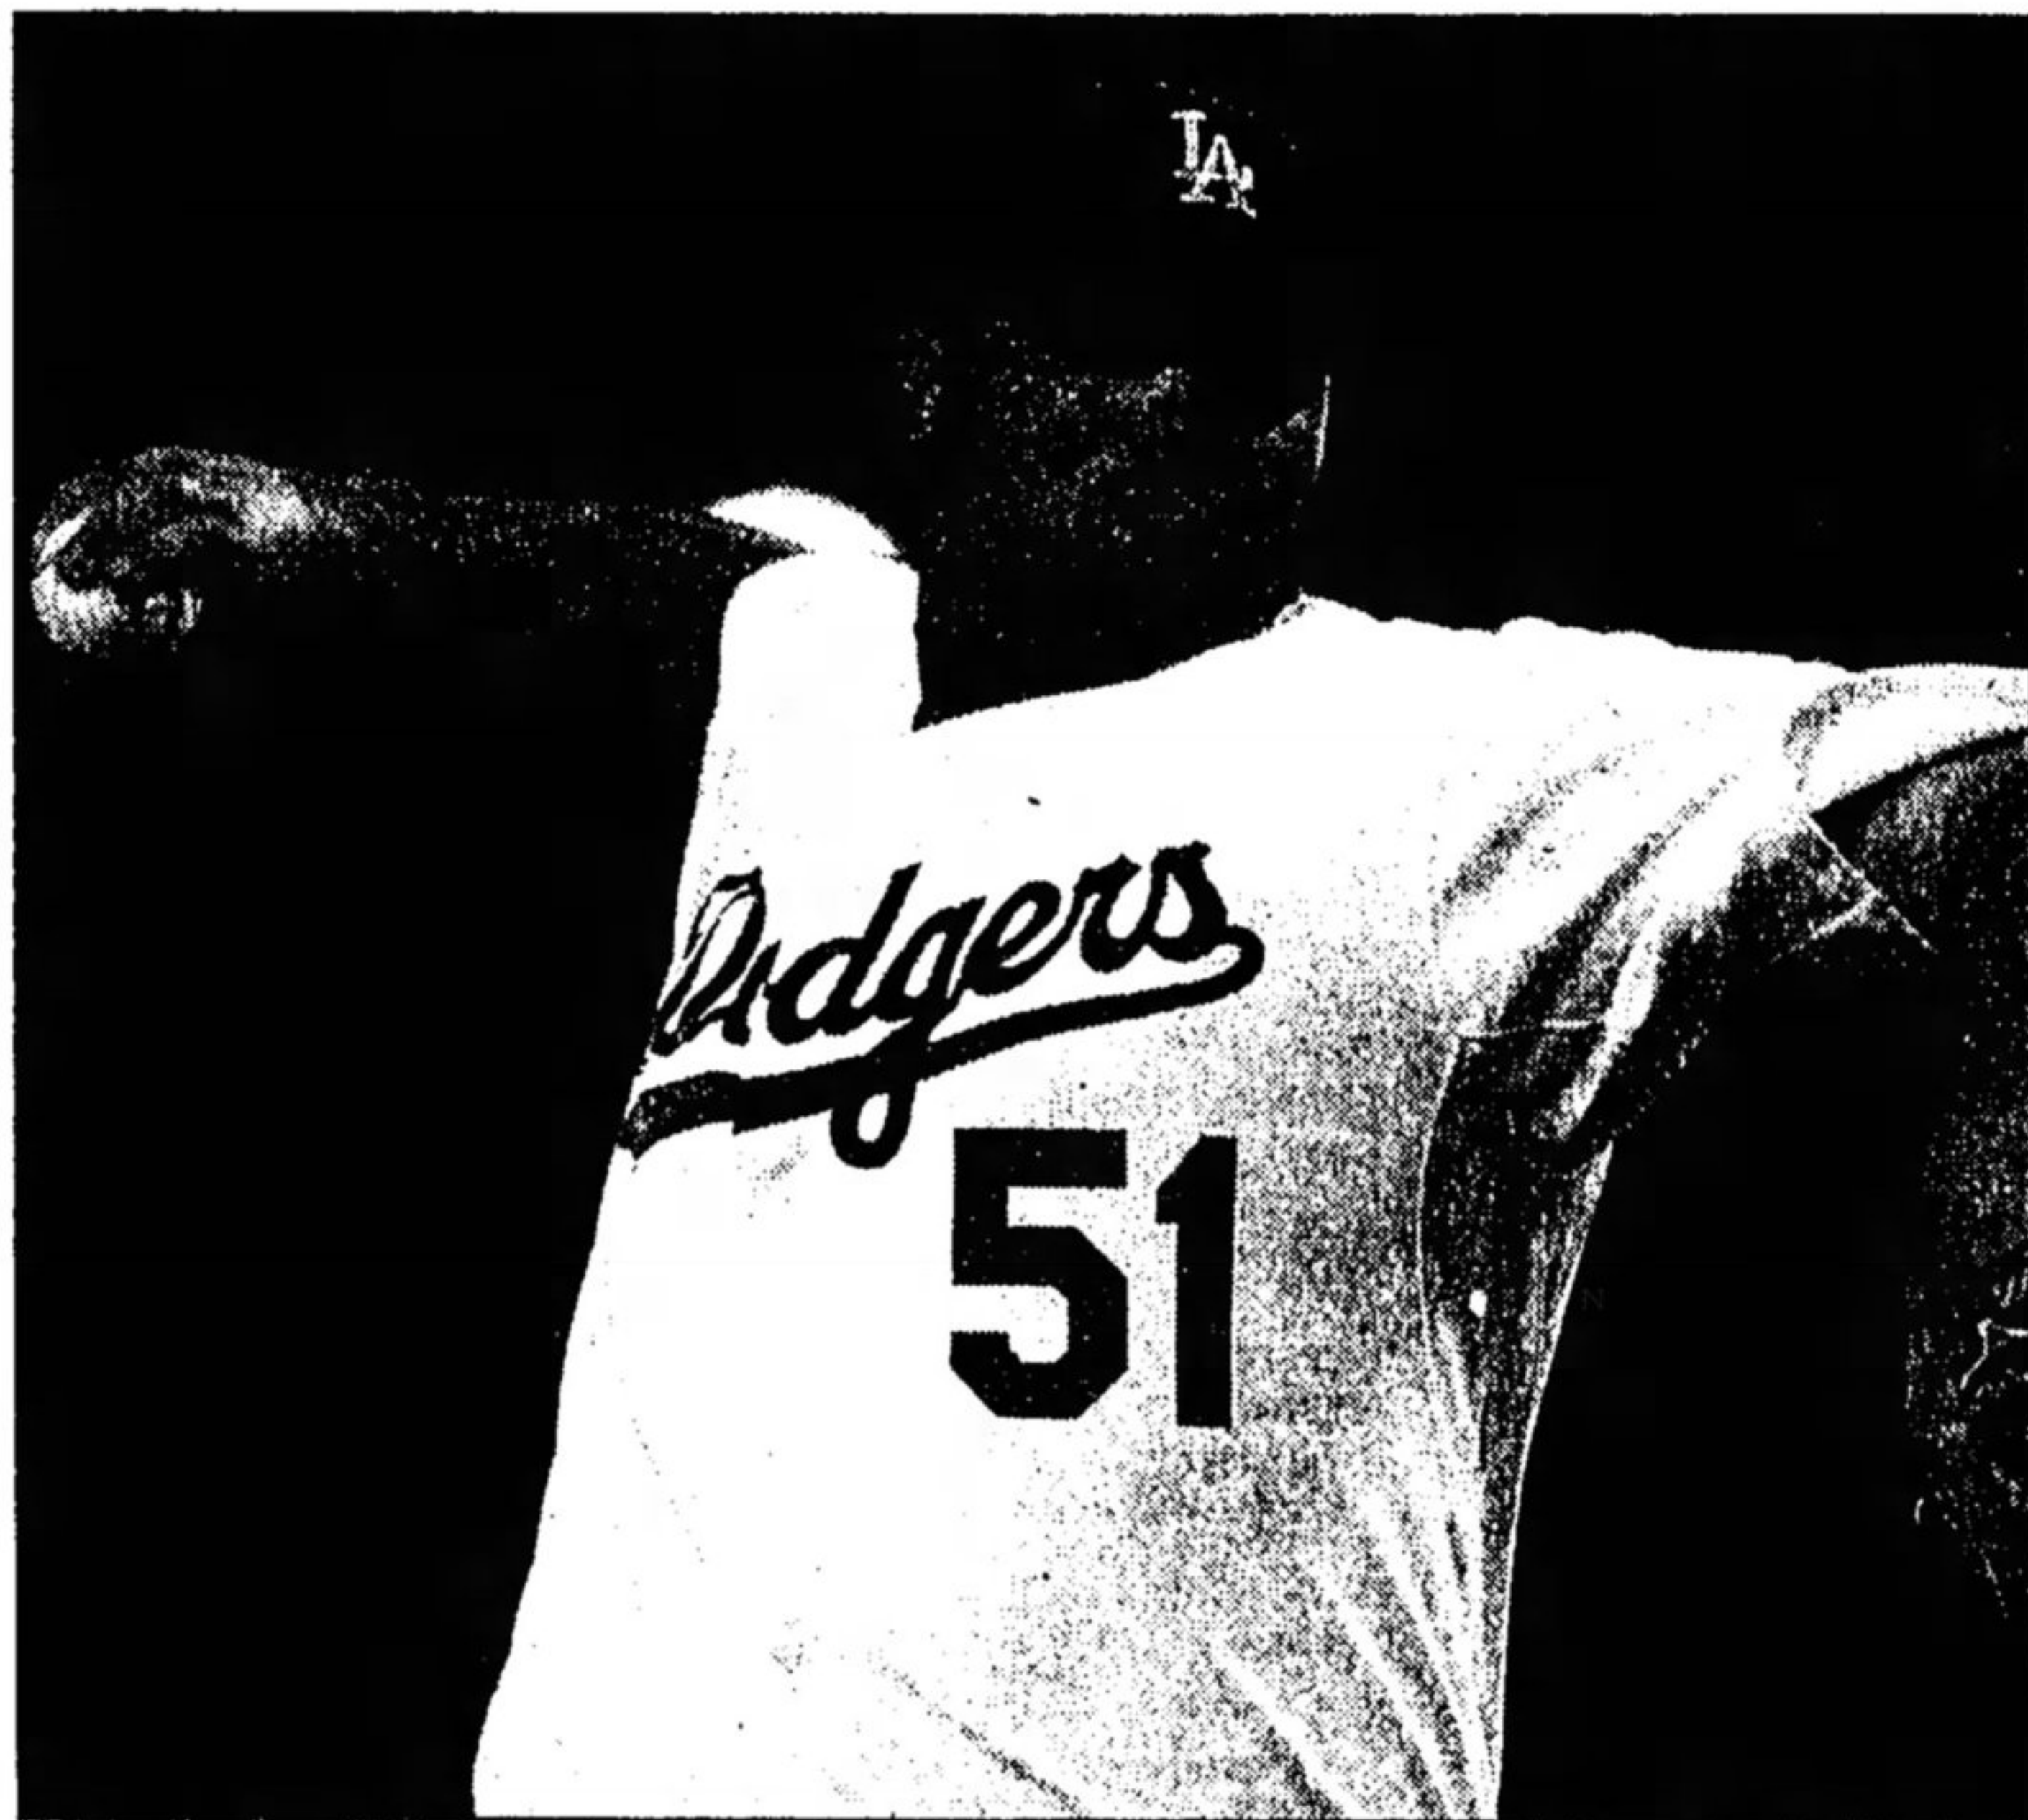

"When you get two runs on one swing, that definitely feels better," Dodgers first baseman James Loney said. "Playing at home, you obviously want to take care of business here. The fans were into the game early, which is good."

Wolf was the Dodgers' most consistent starter this season, with a 2.98 ERA in the second half and just one loss since Aug. 1 for his hometown team. Against the Cardinals, the left-hander allowed two runs and six hits in 3 2-3 innings, walked five and struck out two in the first playoff appearance of his 11-year career.

Weaver was even better, allowing one hit in 1 1-3 innings and striking out one. Jonathan Broxton pitched 1 1-3 innings to earn the save.

"It was the bullpen," Dodgers manager Joe Torre said. "That's our strength. We get to the seventh inning, we feel pretty good about who we have coming in."

Offense was at a premium for both teams' sluggers. The Dodgers'

Jonathan Broxton picked up the save Wednesday in the Dodgers' playoff victory over St. Louis.

Manny Ramirez went 1 for 4 with double and a walk, while Albert Pujols was 0 for 3 with two intentional walks for the NL Central champions.

"In the playoffs, everything's different, so we're just happy that we got the win," Ramirez said. "But remember, tomorrow's another day, so let's see what happens. We still got two more to go."

Game 2 is Thursday at Dodger Stadium, with Clayton Kershaw, another playoff rookie, starting for Los Angeles against 19-game winner Adam Wainwright. Only once this season when Carpenter and Wainwright started back-to-back did St. Louis lose both games.

"They have less adjustments to make than we do, but we'll look at everything," St. Louis manager Tony La Russa said. "We had a lot of good swings, we had a bunch of hits. I like the life of the club, not the way we competed. We just got beat by somebody who played better."

The teams set a division series record by stranding a combined 30 runners. The Dodgers left 16, including 12 in scoring position.

"We had too many chances, too many chances," said the Cardinals' Mark DeRosa, who left two runners on base in the third inning. "Their bullpen came in, and inning after inning, we didn't get the big hit we needed."

Carpenter, who was the NL's ERA leader while going 17-4 and went 2-0 ag hrew to first to end the inning.

The Dodgers made it 3-1 in the third when Andre Ethier was hit by a pitch, moved up on a walk to Ramirez and took third on Loney's flyout.

Third baseman DeRosa made a diving, backhanded stop of Casey Blake's infield hit down the line, but his throw to second sailed into right field.

Philadelphia 5, Colorado 1
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cliff Lee pitched like an ace instead of a postseason rookie.

Lee dominated the Colorado

Rockies, tossing a six-hitter, and the Philadelphia Phillies began their World Series title defense with a 5-1 victory in their NL playoff opener Wednesday.

Raul Ibanez had two hits and two RBIs, and Ryan Howard and Jayson Werth drove in runs with key extra-base hits off 15-game winner Ubaldo Jimenez.

On a day when swirling winds made flyballs an adventure, Lee, the reigning AL Cy Young Award winner, struck out five and had no walks in his first career playoff start. He retired 16 straight batters at one point until Garrett Atkins hit a wind-blown double in the seventh. Lee lost his shutout when Troy Tulowitzki doubled in a run with two outs in the ninth.

The hard-throwing Jimenez was equally impressive against the league's No. 1-scoring offense for four innings, but ran out of gas in the fifth. He got chased with no outs in the sixth after allowing nine hits and five runs in five-plus innings.

Yankees 7, Twins 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Derek Jeter homered, CC Sabathia was the ace the Yankees signed him to be, and New York romped over the Minnesota Twins in the opener of their AL playoff series.

Even Alex Rodriguez broke out of his playoff rut against these tired Twins.

After Jeter's third-inning homer off losing pitcher Brian Duensing made it 2-0, Nick Swisher hit a go-ahead double in the fourth.

Rodriguez had gone 0 for 29 in the postseason with runners on base dating to Game 4 of the 2004 AL championship series before chasing Duensing with an RBI single that made it 4-2 in the fifth. Rodriguez hit an RBI single off the right-field wall in the seventh.

After beating Detroit in the AL Central tiebreaker at the Metrodome on Tuesday night, Minnesota didn't arrive at its hotel until nearly 4 a.m. The Yankees were 7-0 against the Twins during the regular season.

Sabathia, who had lost his last three playoff decisions for Cleveland and Milwaukee, allowed one earned run in 6 2-3 innings and struck out eight.

Ex-Monessen businessman turns 99

Monessen native Frank Milinovich, who spent most of his adult life in the beer business in his hometown, observed his 99th birthday earlier this week.

Born in Monessen on Oct. 6, 1910,

Milinovich and his brothers operated the Milinovich Beer Distributing Co. in Monessen - a company that had been started by their father - for many years.

A talented musician, Milinovich also played in several local bands in his younger years.

In addition, he was active for many years in the Croatian Club and Elks Club, both of Monessen.

He and his late wife, the former Mary Mikan, had a daughter, Judy Goldman, who now resides in Boston, Mass; two grandsons and three great-grandchildren.

His only surviving sibling, Nick, resides in Monessen and attended a birthday party for his older brother Tuesday at Victoria House - a Monessen personal care home owned and operated by their niece, Ruth Victoria.

Thank You

Castle Blood features 'Night of the Vampire'

Vampires are taking over Castle Blood this year, one of the longest running Halloween attractions in the area.

This year's gothic Halloween theme at Castle Blood is "Night of the Vampire."

Hosted by the MacCabre family, also known as Ricky and Karen Dick, the castle is at 2860 Main St., along Route 40 in Beallsville.

Every year, hundreds of people come to meet the denizens of the castle in all their dark, morbid forms, without all the chainsaws and ax murderers that are employed at other haunted houses.

This is the 17th straight

Grizelda and Gravelly MacCabre

year the couple has hosted the Halloween tour as "Gravelly and Grizelda MacCabre."

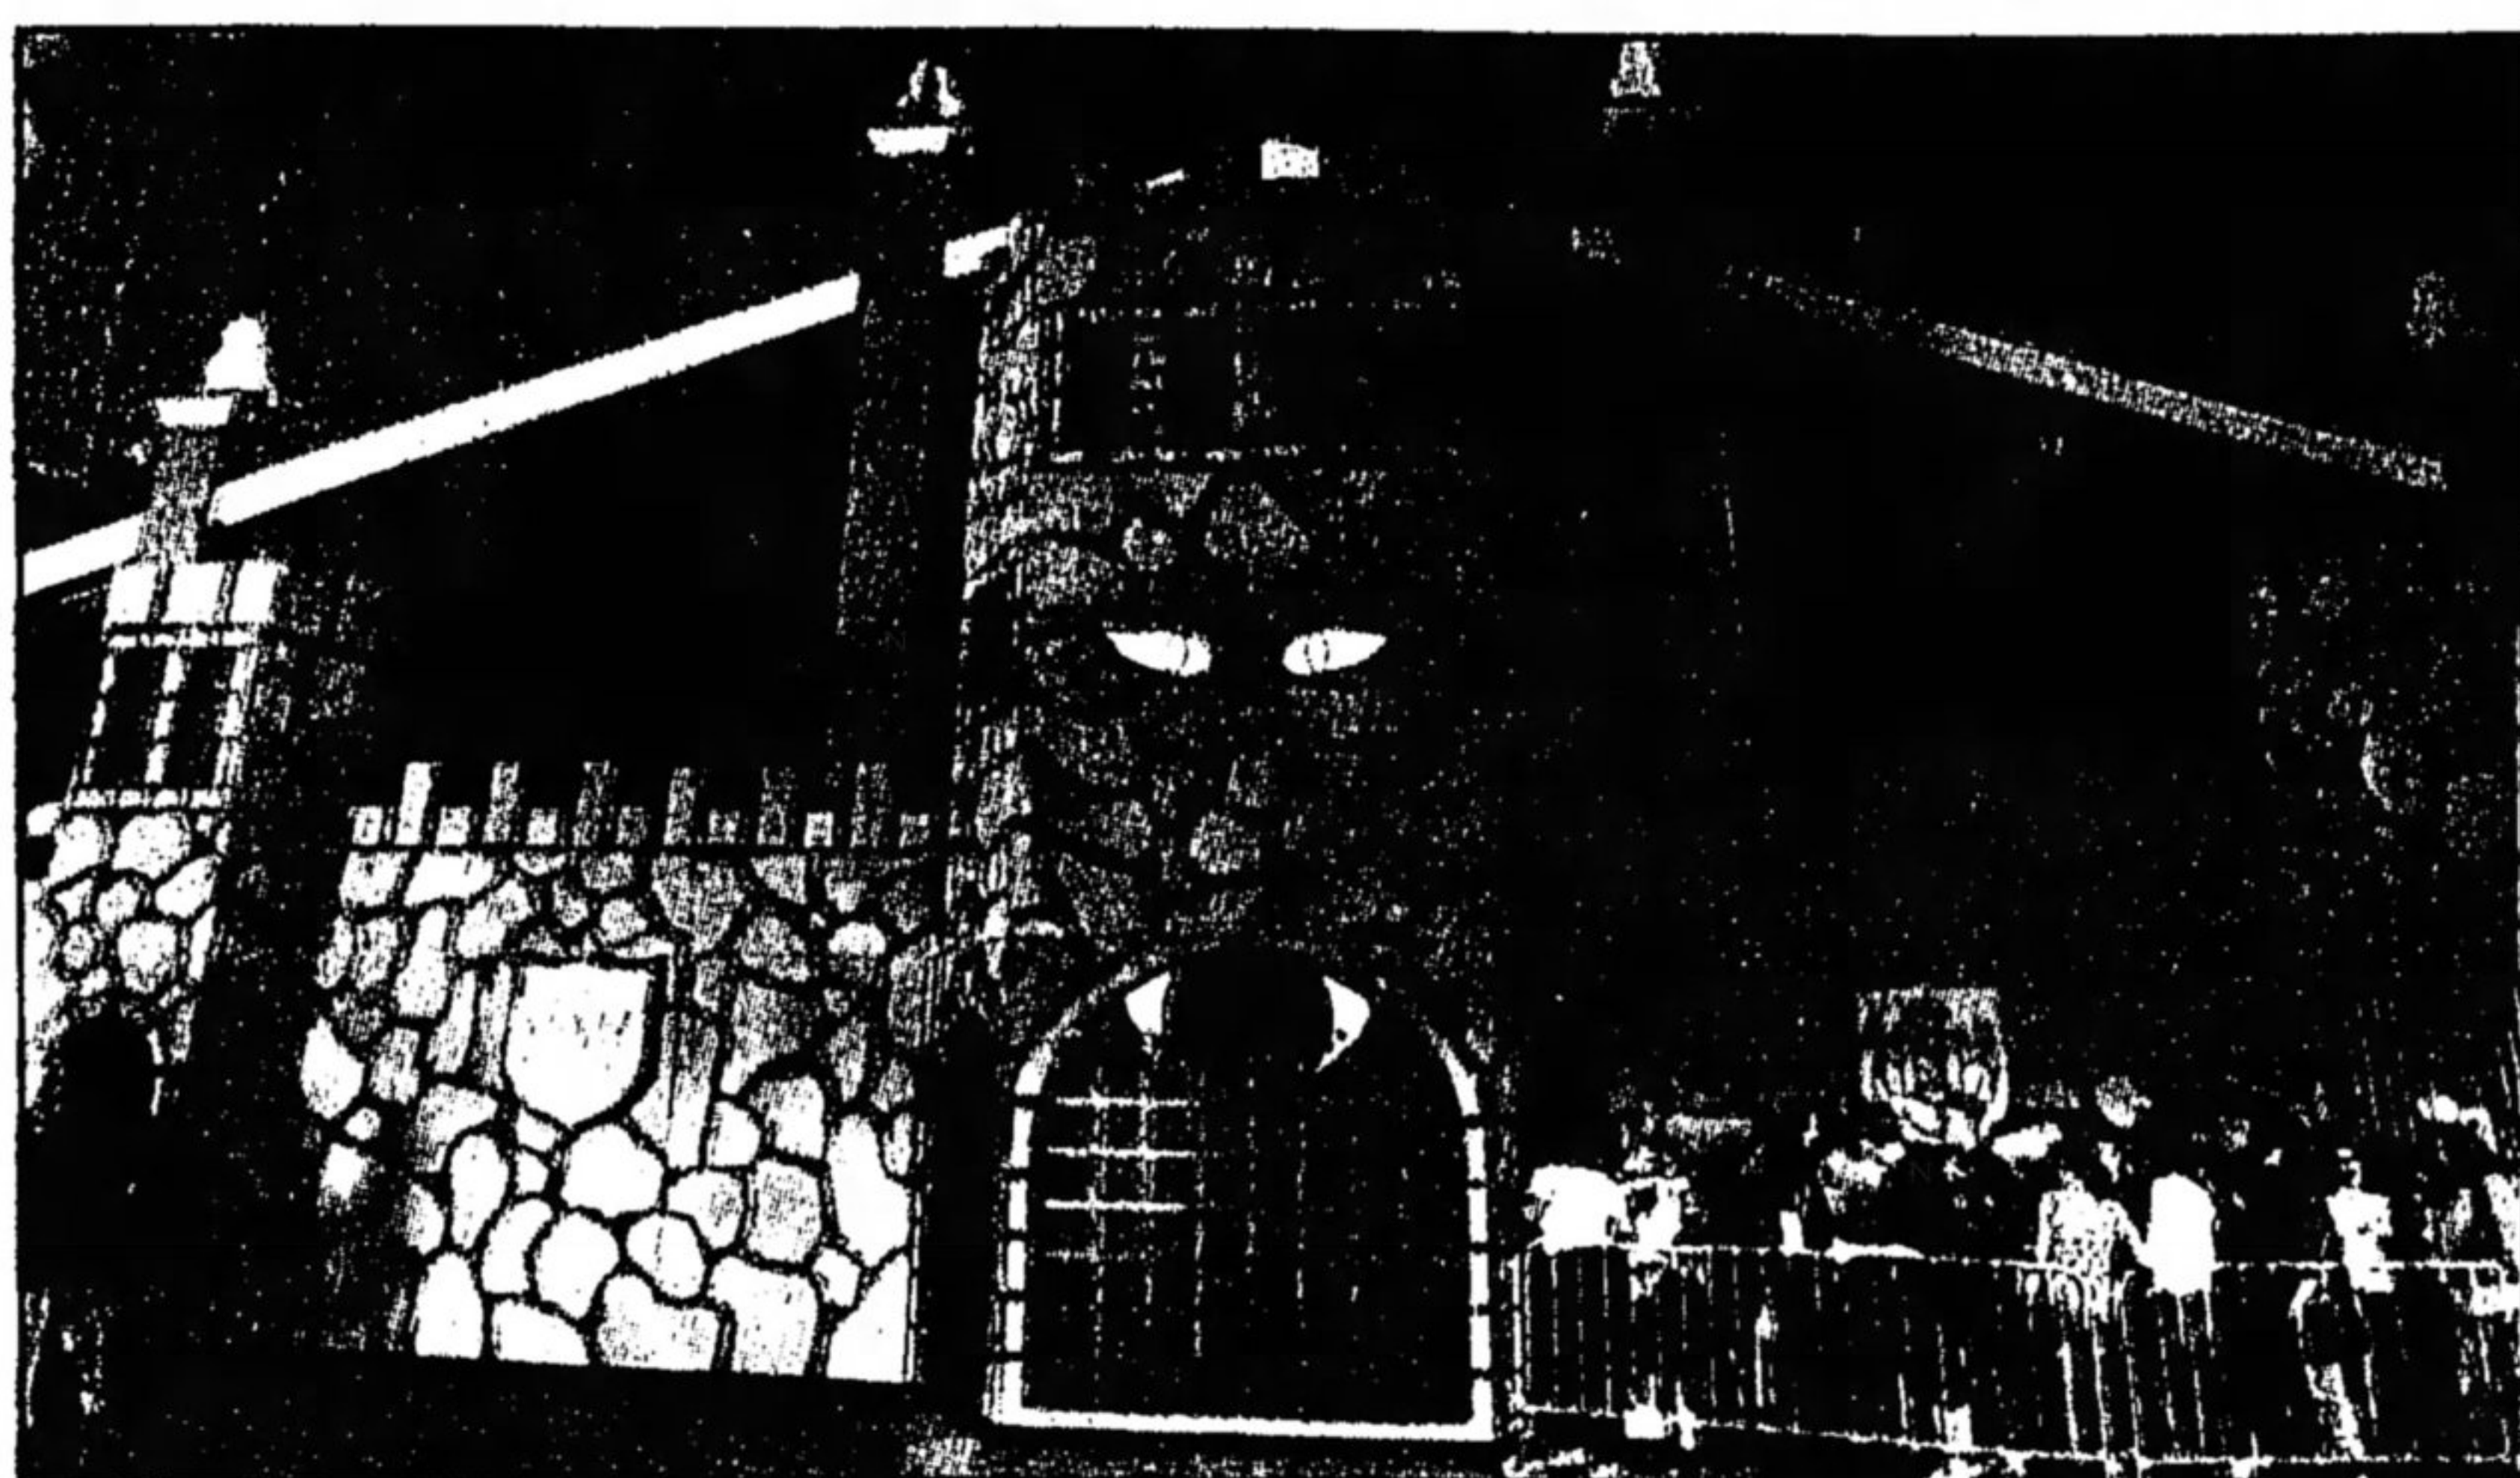

The couple says their "award-winning den of evil" is filled with high quality production values and special effects.

Castle Blood can also be seen nationally on TV's "Midnight Monster Hop" on RTV.

Tours are every Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening through Oct. 31. The ticket booth opens at 7 p.m. and closes at 10 p.m. Tours will continue until all guests have participated.

For younger visitors, there will be two kids, daylight "no scare" tours from 1 to 4 p.m. Oct. 18 and Oct. 25.

For more information, call (724) 632-3242 or at www.castleblood.com.

Villa of the Vampires is one of many frightful attractions during Phantom Fright Nights at Kennywood Park. The Halloween-themed event will continue through Oct. 31.

Phantom Fright Nights return to Kennywood

Park turns scary to celebrate Halloween.

Terror has taken over Kennywood Park as the annual Halloween haunting has taken over the rides and midways.

Phantom Fright Nights at Kennywood Park is open every Friday and Saturday evening through Oct. 31.

Hauntworld Magazine, the "haunt" industry's leading trade magazine, named Phantom Fright Nights as the number five amusement park Halloween event.

"We put an amazing amount of work into transforming the traditional Kennywood setting to a very sinister atmosphere full of surprises and fear," explains Marie Ruby, director of ride operations and the mastermind behind Phantom Fright Nights. "From a dense fog blanketing the park to changing the colors of light bulbs on every ride and adding new elements to the haunts every year, the attention to detail keeps our guests coming back for more every year."

The first clue of transformation begins in the parking lot. Happy lights and laughter give way to eerie music and menacing figures lurking around every turn. The Phantom himself guards the front gate.

Once safely through the creepier-than-ever tunnel, visitors may notice that traditional Kennywood is gone and terror has taken over.

Traveling down the fog-filled midway, guests are soon seduced into any of 10 haunted houses and midways including Villa of the Vampires, Kennyville Cemetery, Mortem Manor and Voodoo Bayou.

The addition of thrill rides, roller coasters and ghoulishly delicious food makes for a Kennywood experience like no other, park officials say.

Phantom Fright Nights take place every Friday and Saturday night through Oct. 31 from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The park will also be open from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. this Sunday.

Tickets are $24.99 at the gate or $21.99 at participating Giant Eagle locations. Group Rates are also available by calling (412) 464-9931.

No food or beverages may be brought into the park during Phantom Fright Nights. Halloween masks, make-up, or costumes are not permitted. Phantom Fright Nights is not recommended for children under 13 years of age. For more information call, (412) 461-0500 or visit www.phantomfrightnights.com.

Jones to sing with Pops

By MARK KANNY
For The Valley Independent

When Shirley Mae Jones was growing up in Smithton, she had no idea what life had in store for her — a theatrical career that would bring international renown.

"Nobody has any inkling when you're living in a town of 800 people," she says.

But after a failed audition in New York City at age 17, Jones was starring on Broadway when she was barely 18. Stage success led to leads in classic film musicals, including "Carousel," "Oklahoma!" and "The Music Man." She even made a successful transition to television, starring for five years on "The Partridge Family."

Shirley Jones returns to Western Pennsylvania this week to join son Patrick Cassidy, Ashley Brown, Marvin Hamlish and the Pittsburgh Symphony Pops in extended selections today through Sunday at Heinz Hall. Jones will sing several of her notable hits from "Carousel" and "Oklahoma!" on the first half of the concert.

Jones

Four years ago, Cassidy persuaded her to return to the stage for a production of "42nd Street." At first, she thought the idea was crazy, given that she was past 70. But, she says, "when your children beg you and tell you it will be wonderful, and promise to take care of you, you get talked into it."

She surprised herself. "It did turn out to be wonderful. After a month or so, I was fine. I lost 12 pounds. It really did surprise me to be able to do it every night, to really connect with a standard of what you want."

That collaboration led to another, an adaptation of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" for performance with symphony orchestra that was created for the Hartford Symphony in Connecticut. This version, which cuts dance numbers and a few other sections, is the basis of the upcoming Pops performances. Jones will sing Mrs. Paroo, mother of Marian, the role she served so well in the film.

As a teen, Jones did musicals in Pittsburgh, won singing contests and a Miss Pittsburgh pageant, but was planning to study veterinary medicine in college.

On one of her family's summer trips to New York City to see musicals, she ran into a friend from Pittsburgh Playhouse, pianist Ken Welch. He heard composer Richard Rodgers and lyricist Oscar Hammerstein II, the hottest team on Broadway thanks to "Oklahoma!," were holding open auditions for chorus in their shows. She'd never taken a professional audition before, and this would be starting at the top. But why not?

With three songs prepared, they stood in line with music in hand, 51 other singers ahead of her. After she sang, the music director asked if she could wait.

Twenty minutes later, a man she didn't recognize walked down the theater's center aisle.

"Miss Jones?" he said.

"Yes. What did you say your name was again?"

"Richard Rodgers."

After she sang, he, too, asked her to wait, because he wanted his associate to hear her. By now, her pianist had to leave to catch a flight. Rodgers said not to worry.

When Hammerstein arrived, he asked her if she knew the score of "Oklahoma!"

"I know the music, but I don't know the words," she replied, emphasizing that she was speaking to the lyricist.

They gave her a score, and to fill in for the pianist, Rodgers called on the City Center Orchestra, which just happened to have been rehearsing nearby for a national tour of "Oklahoma!" Jones, Rodgers and Hammerstein walked to the other theater.

"In my 17 years, I'd never seen, let alone sung with, an orchestra," she recalls. With score in hand, Jones completed her audition, singing "People Will Say We're in Love."

She was immediately hired as one of the nurses for a new Rodgers and Hammerstein show called "South Pacific."
